Robins To Tangle With N. C. Major Leaguers Oct. 6

Leading baseball stars in the major league who hail from the Old North State will be seen in an exhibition game at Robbins Park in Red Springs on Sunday, October 6, when Buddy Lewis of the Senators, brings his Major League All-Stars for a benefit game with the Red Robins..

Tom Cope, the Springers' sports impressario, has booked the game for the purpose of raising funds for the purchase of electric lights for the park and promises that the Springs will be treated to some night games next season, if the necessary equipment is obtainable by that time.

These North Carolina lads, who are among the outstanding players of the bigtime circuits will include: Bill Johnson, Aaron Robins and Tommie Byrnes of the New York Yankees; Taft Wright of Lumberton and the Chicago White Sox who has been seen on the Robbins park line-ups in several service games during the war, with teammates Ralph Hodgin and Joe Haynes; from Washington Senators will come Lewis, Gil Coan, Jake Early, Al Evans and Rae Scarborough; and there will be three THE MAN who made today's headlines, Heary A.
