Products left at the cannery longer than one week will be charged 1/2 cent per can for storage.

We can furnish you with cans for home canning as long as our supply lasts.

Some canning suggestions

Use of Corn Cutter. Gather fresh tender corn, shuck, and silk and bring directly to cannery. Ends of ears should be trimmed smooth. Oversized ears and undersized ears should be cut by hand or discarded. If you wish to you may catch your cobs in a clean container and scrape by hand. The cutter will cut 20 ears per minute and do an excellent job if operated properly.

Use of pea and bean huller. Lima or butter beans will be shelled in the morning only from 8 to 12 o'clock.

Peas will be shelled in the afternoon only from 12 to 3 o'clock.

Peas and beans should be gathered when free of dew or rain. Do not wash before hulling. The huller will not do a good job if peas or beans are wet. Peas and beans should be sifted and trash picked out before washing, as the trash will stick to wet product. If machine does not do a satisfactory job, ask the supervisor for help. Feed machine properly.

If peas or beans are to be canned there is no charge for hulling. If peas or beans are taken home not canned the charge is 50c per bushel.

Keep your cannery clean. Wash all equipment that you have used before leaving.

Mark your cans clearly. Do not mark more cans than you need. Take your cans home the next canning day after you have canned them.

The following persons will be on hand to help you. Mrs. E. B. Sasterling, Wade Powell, Jack Elwanger, C. E. Morrison, Teacher of Agriculture.

The Christian VIEWPOINT

Prepared by Department of Bible, Presbyterian Junior College, Maxton, N. C.

The first sign of a little mind is a tendency to criticize. The next sign is the desire to tell everyone else how to run his life. At such a person becomes an official with a little power, he develops into a bureaucrat. He revels in permits, licenses, forms, regulations, reports, restrictions, regulations, and restrictive plans. He does nothing himself, so he is fully prepared to tell others how to do it. To let people have a maximum of freedom, let them live their own lives, seems to him a dangerous heresy. His assumption is that the more rules, the better and anyone who goes in any direction in which he does not make a big mistake in running his own affairs.

Karl Marx, wanted everybody to let him tell them how to run the world, so he wrote, "The democratic concept of man is because it is Christian. Democracy holds that each man is a sovereign being. This is the illusion and dream of Christianity."

Paul the apostle wrote, "For whether we live, we live unto the Lord; or whether we die, we die unto the Lord: whether we live therefore, or die, we are the Lord's." "So then each one of us shall give account of himself to God." Rom. 14:8,12.
