Six Hundred Golfers On the Links In Record-Breaking Day of Sport

Tin Whistles Carry On Tournament In Midst Of Holiday Crowd.

OVER 550 CADDIES NEEDED

By A. Linde Fowler.

"Happy days are here again," is the opening line of one of the theme songs of a popular orchestra, and if ever there was a lyric befitting Pinehurst over the Washington's Birthday period that is it. Even the oldest of the old-timers cannot remember a mid-winter period with greater activities at the Country Club than was true of yesterday. By ten o'clock in the forenoon there were three hundred individual registrations at Willie Wilson's desk, which does not include those holding weekly, monthly and season tickets. By eleven o'clock, all of the five hundred caddies on the Country Club roster were out on the three courses in play. People were still coming. A hurry call for additional bag-toters was sent out here, there and everywhere, and fifty additional caddies were rounded up, but even then some of them had to carry double, because the total number of individual players out before the noon hour had increased to six hundred or more.

Nothing like this had been known at this season of the year as far back as 1930-31. Willie Wilson, in charge of the registration desk, an employee of many years, was firmly of the opinion that the number of starters up to ten o'clock in the forenoon had created a new record. He was so busy punching the cash register at the registration desk that he declares his right arm was almost paralyzed, and he avers that he finally had to call out the fire department to pour water on the over-heated "Scotch piano," which is his name for the machine which tabulates the receipts.

Even then the entire story is not told. There had been more than three hundred new registrations on Sunday, and the best of the whole thing is that fully seventy-five of the week-end and holiday guests who were booked to leave for northern points last evening, cancelled their railroad reservations, and stayed over for at least one more day. In all the time that I have been at Pinehurst, I never have heard so many compliments freely expressed about golf courses as those which have been on tap for the last three days.

Record Crowd Attends Gymkhana Held Sunday In Carolina Riding Ring

Donkey Polo Proves High Spot Of Afternoon's Program Of Fun.

CLOSE TO A THOUSAND THERE

Ole Man Weather was good to gymkhana enthusiasts Sunday and close to a thousand spectators turned out for the two hours of equine frolic staged in the Carolina Hotel's riding ring.

First event on the card was the ribbon race, with seventeen contestants entered. The blue ribbon went to the handsome equestrienne, Phyllis Stevenson, of Glen Cove, Long Island, and Aiken, S. C., who copped four ribbons off the sleeves of fellow riders. Little Eva Fitzgerald came in second.

Eighteen riders faced the spud bucket in the next event on the card, properly called the potato race. Emerging with most murphies was the team captained by Mrs. Emile de Planque with nine potatoes.

Came the donkey polo next with four men trying to navigate five mules around the ring and equipped with brooms as polo sticks, lined up against four ladies on genuine horses, also with brooms. The ladies team was composed of Phyllis Stevenson, Arline Bliss, Mrs. de Planque, while Sylvester Loudermelt, Corbett Alexander, Dion Kerr, Jr., and G. E. Katzenbach, of Philadelphia comprised the men's mule quartet. Sylvester rode Greenhound; Corbett had Goober, Dion Kerr was up on Mrs. Why Not, while Katzenbach negotiated Mr. Who, the smelliest piece of donkey stubbornness ever seen in the Sandhills.

The girls took the blue in the donkey slaproom stick comedy, scoring two goals to the mule cavalier's one, with several concessions made by Lloyd Tate, master of ceremonies thrown in.

Four horses bunched up with a tie in the open jump, the next event to be rolled off the card. The four horses and riders were: Bryan O'Lynn, Clarence La Pearl up; Trouble, Dion Kerr up; Mohawk, Harry O'Hara up and Tophorn, "Junebug" Tate up.

On the re-run, Junebug took the blue with a clean round that was really sensational. Bryan O'Lynn, La Pearl up came in second.

Pigs and crates were dragged out for the pig race, dubbed by steward E. G. Fitzgerald the Future Pinehurst Sausage event. The six lady piggie convincers were: Phyllis Stevenson, Peggy Warren, Mrs. de Planque, Arline Bliss, Ruth McEnery and Nanette (Continued on Page Four)

Our Manager, Bay Gelding Wins Mulberry Steeplechase, Two Miles Over Brush.

VERNER Z. REED ENTRY SHOWS

CAMDEN, S. C., Feb. 22.—(P)—Escape III, six year old bay gelding, owned by Richard Mellon of Pittsburgh, pulled away from the favorite, Mrs. G. H. Bostwick's Fugitive, in a stirring finish to win the feature Washington's Birthday plate race here today before a crowd of 5,000 spectators.

Fugitive, last year's winner, ridden by Randolph Duffy, led almost all the way, but tired and dropped back of Escape, piloted by Sidney Waters, Jr., at the next to the last jump.

Escape crossed the line going away with Fugitive second, ahead of Gigolo, owned by Mrs. Vaden Markaroff of New York. Escape's time was 4:31.

The most thrilling of the seven races was the Mulberry Steeplechase, two miles over a brush course, won by Our Manager, another bay gelding, after a neck and neck race in the flat.

CAMDEN, S. C., Feb. 22.—(P)—Louchea, owned by F. Ambrose Clark, of Cooperstown, N. Y., won the Kamchatka, opening event on the Washington Birthday race over the Springdale course here today. F. Bellhouse had the mount.

Little Hurd, owned by Verner Z. Reed, of Pinehurst, placed third in the last race, a mile event over the flat.

March 9th Date Assigned For Hearings on Supreme Court Reform Proposals

Senate Judiciary Committee Reports Out Sumner's Bill On Supreme Court.

FDR CALLS FARM LEADERS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—(P)—Capitol Hill received notice today that the intense phase of the gigantic struggle over President Roosevelt's court reorganization proposal would begin March 9th.

Supporters of the President's proposal succeeded in getting the Senate Judiciary Committee to set that date for the beginning of the hearings on the program to empower the President to name one new justice to the Court for each one over 70 who refuses to retire.

Shortly before the committee's action was announced, President Roosevelt conferred at the White House with eleven farm leaders and Secretary Wallace in an effort to win their support for his court proposals.

In the group was Edward A. O'Neal of Chicago, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation. He and the others discussed farm legislation with Wallace and were expected to take up the same subject with Mr. Roosevelt in addition to the courts.

The retirement bill—already approved by the House—was reported out by the committee without change after several amendments had been rejected by the overwhelmingly democratic majority.

Committee members said the vote was 11 or 12 to 5. There was a disagreement over the exact total.

Chairman McCarran (D-Nev) of the sub-committee which handles the bill said he hoped to bring it up in the senate this week.

A large gathering attended the George Washington Supper Dance at the Pinehurst Country Club last evening, one of the most attractive social affairs of the late winter season in the Sandhills. The Club was effectively decorated in holiday motif, red, white and blue streamers and small lights of these colors were placed in the orchestra's stand and in the windows. Candles were used on the tables. During the evening the floor show of the Club Chalfonte presented an excellent program of dances by Jeanette and Kalan and Peggy Roberts, continental singer rendered a number of songs which were well received by an enthusiastic audience. Music for the dance was furnished by Fred Kibler and his orchestra and as usual, the orchestra in its own inimitable way, added much to the gayety of the evening.

Among those entertaining parties at the dance were Mr. and Mrs. Stephen E. Comstock, who had as their guests, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Fitzgerald, Miss Josephine Jewett and David Jewett. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hogg entertained for Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rhyn, Jr., Miss Catherine Hogg and Robert D. West, Jr. Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Elder of Pittsburgh had Miss Rosemary Thomas and Roy Bruce as their guests; Mrs. Hurst Vincent Campbell entertained for Mr. and Mrs. J. Potter Stockton and Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. At another tables were Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Fitzgerald, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Church, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Pieaget, Mr. and Mrs. A. Linde Fowler and Mrs. Marion W. Phillips.

Other guests included Mrs. Richard Tufts, Miss Helen Kohler, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Vail, Miss Joyce Smith, Miss Lorain Baker, Miss Anne Hotchkiss, Leland McKeithen, Leslie Pierce, Frank Gilbert.
