FRIDAY, NOV. 3, 1899.

THE OUTLOOK celebrates the opening of its third volume by presenting to its readers a twelve-page paper containing a description of our beautiful little village, with many fine halftone illustrations. While the story of Pinehurst has often been told, there are yet many thousands in this country who have never heard of it—people who need the restorative effects of a winter in the South, but do not know where to go. To many of these we hope our description of Pinehurst will prove a blessing, by directing them to the place where they can find an ideal winter home in the most healthful climate in the world.

Now is the time to come to Pinehurst, before the cold damp winds have brought on an attack of pneumonia or the grip. Autumn in Pinehurst is very much like the beautiful Indian summer in the North, but the chill produced by dampness is lacking. It is the best season of the year to recover health and strength, to enjoy the walks and drives through the aromatic pine woods, or to play golf. Don't wait until after the holidays, but spend Christmas in the home of the holly and mistletoe.

Pinehurst Vocal Studio.

The Pinehurst Vocal Studio will open in a few days under the direction of Mr. A. N. St. Clair. The system taught is that of the celebrated F. Lamperti, the director of the Royal Conservatory of Music at Milan, Italy, and is grounded on the principles of the old Italian singing masters. The greatest attention will be paid to breath control, placing and production of voice, register, force and intensity of expression, etc. Pupils can be fitted for church, concert, oratorio or opera by the best of all systems—"Nature's own"—built as it is on the perfect freedom of all organs connected with the voice.

Letters from Former Residents.

Mr. Thomas B. Jones of Boston, who spent the last two seasons at Holly Inn, writes as follows from Asheville:

"I have already started for Pinehurst. By an arrangement with Mr. Tufts, I shall occupy my old room at Holly Inn, and am only waiting here for some one to unlock the front door."

ROXBURY, MASS., Oct. 16, 1899.

EDITOR OF THE OUTLOOK:

DEAR SIR,—I wish to express the satisfaction I derived from the pleasant outing that I enjoyed with my boy at Pinehurst last year. We both have the most agreeable recollections of this "Oasis in the Desert" and would be glad to spend another season there if we could.

My son was very well there, and happy in the varied experiences and amusements of the place, and I enjoyed particularly the charming friends whom you gathered in such unusual numbers at the hotel.

The weather was good, the care excellent, and the surroundings agreeable. The variety of interests in your transplanted village, compensated for the monotony of the sandy tract in which you have planted it.

Yours sincerely,

W. P. BOLLES, M. D.

Sport for the Hunters.

Pinehurst will prove very attractive for sportsmen during the coming season. Mr. J. H. Huffstickler has a pack of twelve trained fox hounds which he is keeping in good practice, and has already captured sixteen foxes this fall. He also has a number of dogs well trained for hunting birds, opossums, coons and other game, and is constantly adding to his pack. These dogs are kept at the goat farm and will be available for the use of Pinehurst guests. Guides may also be obtained. Last season quite a number of our villagers enjoyed a ride after the hounds, and this season the sport will undoubtedly prove more popular than ever. Foxes are numerous this year.

Mr. H. H. Powell of Aberdeen has established a hunting camp in the best hunting territory in this part of the state, and has a large pack of hounds trained for hunting different kinds of game. An elaborate winter program has been laid out, which includes hunts for different kinds of game, followed by game suppers and barbecues at the camp. Mr. Powell is a veteran sportsman, and is familiar with the haunts and habits of all kinds of game found in this section. Our villagers will be able to participate in the hunts, enjoy the privileges of the camp, and secure the services of competent guides and dogs.

Trap shooting is another amusement that will undoubtedly prove interesting for gunners. A club house and expert traps have been erected just outside the village, and our Northern guests will find ample facilities for indulging in this healthful sport.

Mr. C. D. Benbow, our village superintendent, is a very busy man these days. With his customary forethought and energy he is seeing to it that the finishing touches are put on all the improvement about the village, and endeavoring to anticipate the wants of our winter residents. This is one of the secrets of his popularity among our Northern guests.
