

LARD AND WILSON TIE!

Third Trap Shooting Event Proves a Rattling Contest.

The third shoot in the winter's trap shooting series, postponed, shot last Friday afternoon, was witnessed by the largest gallery of the season. The event was fifteen singles and ten doubles (twenty birds) for the magnificent H. W. Priest Cup, now on exhibition at The Carolina where it is attracting much attention. The contest was a rattling one, and resulted in a tie between Lard and Wilson, with twenty-nine birds each.

The participants were: A. E. Lard, St. Joseph, Mo., (scratch); M. H. Wilson, Cleveland, O., (3 on singles, two pairs on doubles); H. Nelson Burroughs, Philadelphia, (scratch, one pair); M. C. Parshall, Warren, Pa., (3, two pair); Carl Gildersleeve, Warren, Pa., (3, two pair); C. A. Lockwood New York City, (scratch, one pair); A. C. Ketcham, New York City (3, two pair); Frank Presbrey, New York City, (1, two pair); F. M. Yost, William Shireman, W. D. Matheson, Middletown, Pa., (scratch).

These scores were made:

Wilson Wins Trophy.

In the tie shoot of Tuesday morning Wilson won the trophy, with thirty kills against Lard's twenty-seven. It was a close and uncertain contest from first to last, which kept the interest of those present keenly alive. Fifteen singles and twenty doubles were shot.

On the singles, Lard missed his tenth and fifteenth birds, and Wilson the third and fifth, but on the handicap allowance of three birds, Wilson secured three straight, making a total of sixteen out of fifteen. In the doubles Lard missed the third, sixth, ninth, eleventh and twentieth birds, scoring fifteen, and Wilson, the second, third, fourth, seventh, eighth, tenth, eleventh, thirteenth and seventeenth, scoring eleven. On his handicap allowance of seven birds, he killed six.

Summary: Lard, 13 singles, 15 doubles 28; Wilson, 16 singles, 14 doubles, 30.

Some question was raised as to whether Wilson was entitled to the sixteenth bird in the string of fifteen, but the matter was of little consequence as it did not effect the result. The committee, however, ruled that Wilson was entitled to the bird in question.

SERVES A PURPOSE.

Curiosity Arousing Structure Like Everything Else in Pinehurst.

The odd little structure which stands by the roadside at the rear and midway between The Magnolia and The Berkshire, is an object of much curiosity. In appearance it is a wood cylinder painted white, and capped with an octagonal cover of wood and glass, painted in red, with a blue ornament on top. A peep inside gives little information, revealing only a circular red sandstone.

This stone, however, is the cap of the brick column upon which Professor Skinner of the Naval Observatory at Washington, mounted a transit instrument when the last total eclipse of the sun was observed at Pinehurst under his direction by a corps of astronomers.

At that time Pinehurst was determined to be in longitude West from Greenwich, 79 minutes, 28 degrees and 10 seconds, and in North latitude 35 degrees 11 minutes, 38.2 seconds.
