RECORD ROUND IN SIXTY-NINE SPECIAL EVENTS POPULAR

Travis, the Amateur Champion, Breaks Amateur Course Record.

Every Shot Counted Save Short Putt on Seventh and Second Stroke on Tenth Holes.

ONE of the sensations of the week was the lowering of the amateur golf record for the course from seventy-one to sixty-nine by Walter J. Travis, the amateur champion. This remarkable score was made in a four ball Scotch foursome in which Travis and C. B. Corey of the Oakley Country Club, Wattertown, Mass., played Professionals Bernard Nichols and Jack Hobens, defeating them five up and three to play.

The round was better than "perfect" golf; it was little short of phenomenal. Every shot counted and in no way could it have been bettered (barring fluke shots,) save on the seventh and tenth holes. On the seventh a short putt was missed for a four, and on the tenth, which the champion laughingly dubs his "hoodoo" hole, the second shot was a poor one.

The card in detail:

OUT.			IN.
Yards	Bogey	Travis	Yards	Bogey	Travis
168	3	3	311	4	5
260	4	3	153	3	3
116	3	3	317	4	4
310	4	4	285	4	4
213	4	3	500	6	5
386	5	5	257	4	3
437	5	5	505	6	5
213	4	3	152	3	3
355	5	4	370	5	4
2558	37	33	2850	39	36
			2558	37	33
Totals:			5408	76	69

On his morning round Travis did a seventy-one, a score which equals the amateur record held by T Sterling Beckwith, winner of the last year's championship, making a thirty-six hole total of one hundred and forty for the day. Without doubt this record will stand against all comers until some radical changes are made in golf balls or golf clubs.

The mite boxes which have been in the hands of the children during the winter, will be opened immediately after the service, and the amount raised for missions from them, announced.

Saw Only One Side.

"I was shocked to remark your husband out gunning on the Sabbath," said the Rev. Mr. Stratelace.

"You would have been still more shocked," replied the offender's wife, "if you had heard his remarks about his luck"—Philadelphia Press.
