FRANK POTTLE THE WINNER

ADIRONDACK SPORTSMAN.

Humorous Skit with More of Truth Than Fiction in It.

He came in a private car. He dismounted at his private station. He followed his private roadway in an automobile. He entered his private, four-story, one-hundred-thousand-dollar camp at the private door. He recuperated from his private camp chest, and then the gamekeeper came in to report the chances of killing game.

"The imported moose are in splendid condition," he said, "except one bull. You can shoot him. He has been sick a long time, and it will do no damage to kill him. The imported elk have not been within half a mile of the stand in two weeks. If you will walk a hundred yards from—"

"Out of the question!" exclaimed the sportsman.

"Well—er—we have two bears chained in the back end of the lawn. They are very young—quite harmless. It is possible to shoot them from the observatory."

"Ah! Good! It will be well to tell my friends I shoot bears from my camp. Couldn't you bring them closer?"

"Yes, and in the deer park we have a hundred of the animals scattered over

THE MEDAL PLAY HANDICAP.

A special feature of the tournament which attracted much attention, was an eighteen-hole medal play handicap, played in connection with the first round of match play. Mr. Pottle won the cup offered for the best gross score with 110, and Mr. Murphy, whose handicap was 8, the net score trophy with 104. There were four ties at 110 net between Messrs. Merrow, Swinnerton, Jones and Warwick.

The battle for the possession of the three booby prizes was a hot one, Mr.

THERE WAS "SOMETHING DOING" AT THIS POINT MOST OF THE TIME DURING THE EMPLOYEES' TOURNAMENT.

Woods, whose handicap was 30, winning first with rounds of 109 and 108, 187 net; J. R. Coleman, whose handicap was 18 second, with rounds of 80 and 100, 162 net; and E. Walker, whose handicap was 25, third, with 138 net.

five acres. You could—er—have one of the men kill one from your automobile—"

"Certainly—have it done!"

"Fishing in the private hatchery is satisfying. The trout weigh three pounds apiece and upward, as I have found by dipping them up carefully with a landing net. They are confined, each one, in a trough four feet long and two wide. There will be no difficulty in fastening them securely to your flies, and then dropping them into the main pond for you to catch."

"Good! I need to tell some fishing stories. Send some of the largest fish to the taxidermist's immediately."

"Yessir. Tomorrow, if you wish, we will go out and see the imported boars—they are in pens. I will see that one is speared and the tusks prepared—"

"Oh, well, go ahead and do it; hand me that Wall Street Review, and, secretary, have the telegraph operator bring me the report of that last trespass case. I don't see why people select my 60,000 acres to walk on. There's lots of public highways all around the mountains. We private preservers ought to have the pleasure of seclusion and quiet. Those common people don't appreciate the woods. How can they?"—Life.

Food for Quail.

The work of planting food supply patches for quail on the Pinehurst Preserves, is well under way. Not only cow peas, but millet and other seeds will be sown. These patches are numerous, and well scattered through the territory.
