SHADOW PICTURES TONIGHT

Evening of Rare Enjoyment Planned in Observance of Xmas.

Local Scenes Will be Pictured in Silhouette at Holly Inn Entertainment.

AN evening of Shadow Silhouettes has been planned in observance of Christmas eve, at The Holly Inn tonight, which assures rare entertainment and amusement for guests of the Village to whom a general invitation is extended. The time of starting is set at 8:45 and an hour and a quarter of fun is promised.

Local scenes and characters entirely, are to be depicted and of sly pokes at individuals and conditions there will be many, the whole promising one of the most unique and novel entertainments ever given here.

Among the scenes to be shown will be a peek at the interior of the Pinehurst University and what is done there. Another picture will show how milk and cream is made at the dairy and a third, throw some side lights on THE OUTLOOK editorial rooms and the manner in which the paper is prepared.

Another scene which calls for quite an equipment, in the way of properties, is a mimic reproduction of last week's paper chase, and there will be views of the interiors of the local doctors, and dentists offices.

The photographic studio, the Holly Inn dining room, and other familiar scenes will all be graphically portrayed and some local character impersonations are planned with certainly promise realism.

The Holly Inn orchestra, Prof. Trev. Sharp, leader, will provide music previous to and during the entertainment, and it is probable that there will be dancing following it.

It is hoped that all the guests of the Village will unite in making the evening one long to be remembered.

OTHER OBSERVANCES.

Other Christmas observances will include the usual trees at the Village Hall Monday and Tuesday evenings; the former for the children of the Village, and the latter for the colored children of the vicinity.

A general invitation is extended to attend both of these observances, but a special effort will be made to make Monday evening's tree interesting of general interest. These observances will bring joy to many children who would otherwise know a cheerless Christmas.

across. He tried this with success during the past week and feels sure it is much better than taking chances of going in the water, or if he happens to carry, of landing in the sand pit at the left, or the rough, at the right.

A CHRISTMAS DELICACY.

How to Clear the Pond.

A variety of ways to carry the pond on the ninth, or wind mill hole, have been discovered, but B. P. P. Moseley, of Boston, thinks the way to do it is to strike the bridge and have the ball follow it

A Christmas Delicacy.

One of the delights of the Christmas in this section, is roast wild turkey. No game bird in the world surpasses it in table excellence, as is generally conceded by epicures everywhere.

Handicap Pool Tourney Entertains Contestants Onlookers.

Applauds Gallery Experts and Novices; Good Plays and Poor... The Winners.

POOL has always been in the lead for popularity at The Inn and numerous tournaments have been held there, but as a novelty in which everybody participated, the contest which filled in last Saturday afternoon and evening was a leader furnishing pleasant entertainment for participants and onlookers. Two prizes were offered E. P. Goodwin, of New York, winning first and H. W. Brown, of Boston, second. J. Cushing Todd, of Boston, forfeited an opportunity to win second by playing Mr. Goodwin.

Handicaps were allotted with an effort to equalize matters and as a result, a number were enticed into the game whose efforts seemed principally, to be to get the cue ball into the pockets as often as possible. Of experts there were several, however, the semi-final match between Mr. Goodwin and Mr. Todd being much enjoyed. The match between Mr. Brombacher and Mr. Brown was no less interesting from another point of view, and Mr. Brombacher's terse comment, "I owe you eleven," when the game was over, summed up the situation fully.

As several of the contestants were leaving on the late train it was necessary to rearrange the schedule somewhat and, in consequence, the semi-final and final rounds were not played in order, Mr. Goodwin and Mr. Todd playing for the right to run up in the finals. An interesting and brilliant match was the result, Mr. Goodwin's very liberal handicap making him too much of a proposition for the Boston player. In the finals Mr. Brown and Mr. Goodwin matched for first, Mr. Goodwin winning.

FIRST ROUND—B. P. P. Moseley (65), beat Mrs. W. Hetherington (30); E. P. Goodwin (25), beat L. R. Bolton (3); E. M. Taylor (25), beat H. W. Toothaker (40); W. A. Marland (65), beat Andrew I. Creamer (50); J. M. Young (45), beat Walter B. Mooreman (45); J. Cushing Todd (75-scratch), beat Mr. Giddings (30); Aug. F. Brombacher (35), beat C. H. Adams (45); H. H. Brown (40), beat Harry Dutton (50).
