TENNIS ENTHUSIASTS.

Matches of Messrs. Warland and Taylor Entertain Onlookers.

Frequenter of the Country Club House are finding much entertainment in the tennis matches of W. Seaver Warland, of Cambridge, and Edward M. Taylor, of Wilmington. These matches are of daily occurrence and are characterized by a snap and dash which bespeaks the expert.

Mr. Warland won the Harvard championship and also the Magnolia open championship in 1903, and has figured prominently in events of national importance throughout the country, meeting nearly all of the cracks.

Mr. Taylor is hardly his equal, but an of 7. Mr. Dutton also made the best gross score of the day, leading G. Lee Knight, of Philadelphia, whose handicap was 3, six strokes. W. A. Johnston, of Latrobe, Pa., (13) finished a close second with 89. The day was perfect and many onlookers thronged the course.

enthusiast over the game, and through the assistance of a handicap, is always able to make it interesting for his more skillful opponent.

Professionals.

The two sportsmen looked at each other in the parlor of the village inn and at last entered into a conversation in regard to the experiences of the day.

"And you say you have caught sixty trout in less than two hours," said one at last. "Well, I'm glad to have met you. I'm a professional myself."

"Fisherman?" inquired the other man. "No—er—narrator," was the reply.
