THE WEEK AT THE INN

Bandmaster and Mrs. John Philip Sousa are Prominent Guests.

Bridge Whist, Dancing and Christmas Planning Fill in Quiet but Pleasant Week.

PROMINENT among the week's arrivals at The Holly Inn is John Philip Sousa, who is here with Mrs. Sousa for a short visit and quail shooting.

No American in professional life today is more widely known than the famous bandmaster, his compositions and band making his name a household word throughout the continent. As an author he has also attained prominence through several very charming books, among the best known being The Fifth String, the story of a violin, and Pipetown Sandy, recollections of childhood days.

Here, however, Mr. Sousa appears as

The popularity of bridge continues, dancing is enjoyed by the younger set but best of all are the pleasant acquaintances which are being formed among congenial people.

AMONG THE GUESTS.

Mrs. John Daub, Mrs. J. T. Copel and Miss Emilie Copel of Pittsburg, come for a long sojourn. Miss Copel is a welcome addition to the social set.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Rice of New York, are making a short visit.

Mr. and Mrs. David A. Ellis and child of Boston, will remain several weeks.

Rear Admiral William Hemsley Emory of Washington, will spend the greater part of January here.

Mr. L. Sutherland of Montreal, will remain until Spring.

Mr. Cyrus A. Taft of Whitinsville, returns for the season and will as usual, divide his time between golf and quail shooting.

Mr. Hobart J. Park and Mr. David T. Kennedy of New York, spent a portion of the week here in the hunting field.

Mrs. Herbert L. Jillson of Worcester, Mass., joins Mr. Jillson for the season.

THE NEW A AND A STATION AT PINEHURST JUNCTION (ABERDEEN.)

all distinguished guests do, a man among men, and the Village has entertained few men of his character who stand the test better. Genial, courteous and kindly he is striking contrast to the average conception of the "March King"; merely a gentleman of culture and refinement whom all enjoy meeting. A keen sense of humor and wide experience, together with a natural gift for story telling, make him a brilliant conversationalist, and his departure will cause regret among the many who have had the pleasure of meeting him.

Mrs. Sousa is a charming woman who shares equally in her husband's popularity.

The week has been a busy one but in a quiet way, time being occupied largely with preparation for the Holidays, and there has been a lull in the list of arrivals preceding the big company which will arrive during the next few days, many coming for the Holiday Week Golf Tournament.

The middle of the coming week will find the hotel filled to its comfortable capacity, and until May the demand for accommodations will tax the capacity of the house.

Late Cottage Arrivals.

Mrs. J. E. Leach, Misses Elizabeth and Catherine Leach, Mrs. W. H. H. Porter and Miss Alice L. Porter of Boston, are at the Beech cottage for the season, and a return visit.

Mr. J. Howard Wilson and family of New York, have leased the Sycamore and will be here shortly.

Mr. and Mrs. George Fosdick, and Mrs. Martha Stevens of Winchester, Mass., will occupy the Ivy.

At The Cedars and Lenox.

Manager and Mrs. Robinson will be joined during the Holidays by their son, Fletcher, and a Harvard chum.

Miss Wilson of Salem, is here for the winter.

Mr. Tinney of Jersey City, is making a return visit.

At The Pine Grove.

Mr. T. R. Newbold and family of Washington, D. C., are at The Pine Grove House for the winter. Mr. Newbold has been at The Inn for some weeks and has formed many pleasant acquaintances here.
