MORE THAN EIGHT WEEKS of continuous sunshine were rounded out here early in the week, and during the entire time visitors have rejoiced in it. To be sure the wondrously beautiful days which have been the rule may be a bit better than is general, but they are by no means a "record," as all who have been frequent visitors here are aware.

During the entire time there has been no day that the sun has not shone, and upon all but a very few it has greeted visitors in the morning and said good-bye at night, day after day, week after week, without intermission. There has been nearly as much rain as usual, but after the usual custom, most of it has fallen at night.

Statisticians have declared that no section of the country is as abundantly blessed with sunshine as Pinehurst, but the mere statement in type makes little impression upon the reader. The reputation of the Village in this particular rests with its friends, and the memory of days spent here can never be effaced.

"ABOVE AND BEYOND ALL," wrote an admirer, "Pinehurst is The Land of Sunshine! Never have I seen a larger percentage of sunshiny days, or the sunlight more beautiful; the landscape radiates it; mankind, the birds, nature—every living thing—rejoices in it.

"One associates it with the Village, as majesty with the ocean, grandeur with the mountains, mystery with the forest, and it is a pleasant memory which beckons, as the face of a dear friend."

"I FIND I CAN'T enjoy life without THE OUTLOOK," writes John R. Goodall of St. Louis, who has recently returned home after a month's sojourn here, "and here-with enclose check for subscription to same.

"Every day in St. Louis makes me regret that I had to leave Pinehurst, for the weather has been the regular fall variety: rain, cloudy and cold, with a prediction of snow tonight; in striking contrast to your sunny days.

"Anticipating a future visit and with best wishes, I am

JOHN R. GOODALL."

MORE MONKEY GOLF.

Golfers and Gallery are not Happy Without It.

Monkey golf has always been a case of "more" here and the present season promises to be no exception to the rule, the second contest of the year delighting a big crowd of participants and onlookers Saturday afternoon.

There was fun, frolic, laughter and noise from the first hole to the last and amusing situations without number. Four teams participated with Alexander Ross, Donald Ross, John Peacock, and H. G. White as captains, and while the victors had things all their own way, interest never lagged because of the struggle for second place.

Alex's team led with one hundred and thirteen, a very low score, with Donald's team second with one hundred and thirty-two, White's third in one hundred and thirty-six and Peacock's fourth in one hundred and forty-three.

The make-up of the teams follows:

ALEX ROSS, captain, niblick; Bunzl, putter; Brombacher, mashie; Prescott, midiron; Lyon, brassie; Roe, cleek; Lippy, driver.

DONALD ROSS, captain, brassie; Lightbourn, mashie; Dr. Hill, cleek; Gaulbert, midiron; Tuttle, putter; Fleming, niblick; Van Houten, driver.

H. G. WHITE, captain, putter; J. V. Hall, mashie; Beach, brassie; Newbold, midiron; Turner, driver; Murphy, niblick; Ormsbee, cleek.

JOHN PEACOCK, captain, putter; Gallagher, driver; Robinson, midiron; Bruce, brassie; Dodd, cleek; Peck, mashie; Stifel, niblick.

The lowest scores were fours and the highest fourteen, with a goodly number which took two figures to record.

COMING WEEK A BUSY ONE.

Holiday Week Golf and Christmas Trees the Features.

The coming week will be a busy one with the annual Holiday week golf tournament as its special feature, play beginning Thursday and continuing through the following Monday. The entry list is already large and a contest of much interest assured.

Other features will be the Christmas trees at the Village hall, one for the white children Tuesday and one for the colored children Wednesday.

There will also be a tree for Holly Inn guests, each present being a sly poke at personal peculiarities, the usual Saturday evening hop and Sunday evening concert.

Others will find entertainment in quail shooting, golf, tennis, trap and pistol shooting or riding, making a Holiday week of pleasant diversion long to be remembered.

Manager Abbott Arrives.

Manager F. H. Abbott and Mrs. Abbott arrived during the week, and are busy preparing The Berkshire for its opening Tuesday, January first.

Their son Carl, who is a general favorite here, is at school and will only spend a portion of the winter, his Holiday vacation, here.

THE JAMESTOWN EXPOSITION

Ter-Centennial Will be Interesting and Unique in Many Ways.

A Description of the Most Important Features With Accompanying Illustration.

PRESIDENT McKinley at the Pan-American Exposition, designated expositions as "Timekeepers of Progress" and the Jamestown Ter-Centennial will be no exception to this rule, for it will record in the most vivid way imaginable, the progress made by this country in the past three hundred years. This exposition, to be held on the shores of Hampton Roads, seven miles from Norfolk, Virginia, beginning next April, will commemorate the three hundredth anniversary of the first permanent English settlement in America, and will be in many respects, the most interesting exposition ever held in this country.

In keeping with the nature of the celebration, and made possible by the advantageous location of the grounds, there will be a grand military and naval display which will eclipse in martial splendor any land or water pageant ever witnessed in the world, and in response to the President's invitation, the following nations have made known their intention of participating in the celebration: England, Germany, Russia, France, Japan, Switzerland, Cuba, Mexico, Haiti, Belgium, Costa Rica, Argentine Republic and the Dominican Republic, Norway, Sweden and Spain. In addition to these forces there will be the thousand and one military, semi-military and civic organizations encamped on the grounds from time to time, all going to make up the gorgeous military and naval display.

In accordance with the resolutions passed by Congress there will be on display at the Jamestown Exposition by the Government of the United States exhibits from the National Museum, the Smithsonian Institution, the Bureau of Fisheries, the Congressional Library, the Lighthouse Service, the Life Saving Service, the Revenue Cutter Service, and others. The liberal appropriation by Congress at the recent term gives assurance that the 1907 Exposition will be a grand success.

Special attention has been paid to the landscape design of the Exposition. Not only will the numerous buildings of the Ter-Centennial be features of art and beauty, but the whole scene—buildings, grounds and even the fence that encloses the site—will be blended together in one beautiful park.

One of the important buildings at the Exposition which is virtually completed is the Auditorium and Hall of Congresses. The colonial style of architecture, which is to be the prevailing type, is strictly adhered to in this structure. The main auditorium has a seating capacity of four thousand. The Auditorium is a permanent brick and concrete structure, and will be equipped with all the modern appliances.

To the right and left of this structure, and connected with it by colonnades, will be the Educational building and the Palace of History and Historic Art, twin structures fifty feet high. This group, at the head of the plaza, forms a centerpiece for the general architectural design. The long lines of white columns are to be of Corinthian style, and the dome which surmounts the Auditorium is of the same design as those that appear on several of the old State Capitol buildings.

At the corners of the square will be erected four main exhibit buildings. These buildings will complete the central square, leaving only the sea end open thus making a vista from the steps of the Auditorium, unobscured, to Fort Monroe, seven miles distant, across the waters of Hampton Roads.

Two of the largest buildings, already half completed, are those for manufactures and liberal arts, and for machinery and transportation. These splendid structures have 130,000 square feet of exhibit space each, and are 550 feet wide by 280 feet deep.

A group of buildings to be known as the "Village of Arts and Crafts," already completed, contain shops and studios wherein will be produced specimens of such useful and decorative articles as were used by the early colonists.

EXPOSITION NOTES.

The question of local transportation between the Jamestown Exposition grounds and the adjacent cities is one that interests most people who contemplate a visit to the Exposition, and it may not be out of order to state that ample provision is being made to handle all the people who come. The railway lines, trolley lines and steamboat lines are awake to the fact that there will be thousands of people to handle every day and are making ample provision for the traffic.

The state buildings will all front upon Hampton Roads, and the naval and marine displays may be seen from their verandas and balconies. From the water front the groups of state buildings make a beautiful picture, and the people from the states which have buildings at the exposition will like to spend much time in their spacious halls and in their shady verandas.

A forestry exhibit of immense interest will be an attractive feature, for it will embrace the entire United States, and woods and woodcraft will be shown in this exhibit that have never been known before. This exhibit will be an education in itself.

A reproduction of the world famous battle between the Monitor and the Merrimac will be an attraction that will interest all visitors. It will be made just off the exposition grounds where the battle was fought.

An immense collection of Indian relics, covering three centuries, will be one of the government exhibits.
