Pinehurst's Fairest of the Fair in Living Pictures at The Carolina.

Girls You Know Portrayed by Vivid Impersonations of Well Known Actresses in Favorite Roles.

THURSDAY evening's living pictures, for the benefit of the Dickinson colored school, provided a delightful evening's entertainment at The Carolina, filling the music hall to its extreme capacity.

The program was announced simply as "girls you know," impersonations of well known actresses by twelve young women representing the fairest of the fair in the Village, and a series of artistic and striking reproductions resulted. Of applause there was a continuous round and encores were the rule. Over two hundred dollars was netted as a result of the entertainment, and its success has led thus early to a demand for its repetition.

THE PROGRAM.

Mrs. Eugene Walker of Richmond, Ky., in the conventional white gown and cap, as "Nurse Marjorie," was a refreshing and truthful type.

Miss Ethel Barroll of Philadelphia, as Fritzie Scheff in "Mlle. Modiste," was fascinating in a decollete gown of black, with jet trimmings and black picture hat.

Miss Pauline Firth of Boston, as Ethel Barrymore in "Captain Jinks," was charming in decollete gown of spangled white, with rosebud trimmings and hair ornaments.

Miss Elienn Malloy of Stamford, as Elsie Janis in "The Vanderbilt Cup," gowned in a white autoing costume, with white sailor hat and flowing veil, was typical of the smart American girl of the age; a vivid and striking picture.

Mrs. Herbert L. Jillson of Worcester, as Edna May in "The Belle of New York," gowned in blue, with white neck kerchief and poke bonnet, with its dash of red and flowing tie, was a familiar and truthful likeness of a pretty "Salvation Army" girl.

Miss Ada Pollard of Pittsburg, as Maud Adams in "The Little Minister," in black skirt, white waist, plaid sash, beads and hair ornaments, made a dainty gypsy maiden.

Mrs. Channing M. Wells of Southbridge, was bewitching as Elsa Szamosy in "Mme. Butterfly," gowned in an exquisitely embroidered lavender kimona, with fan, parasol and hair ornaments.

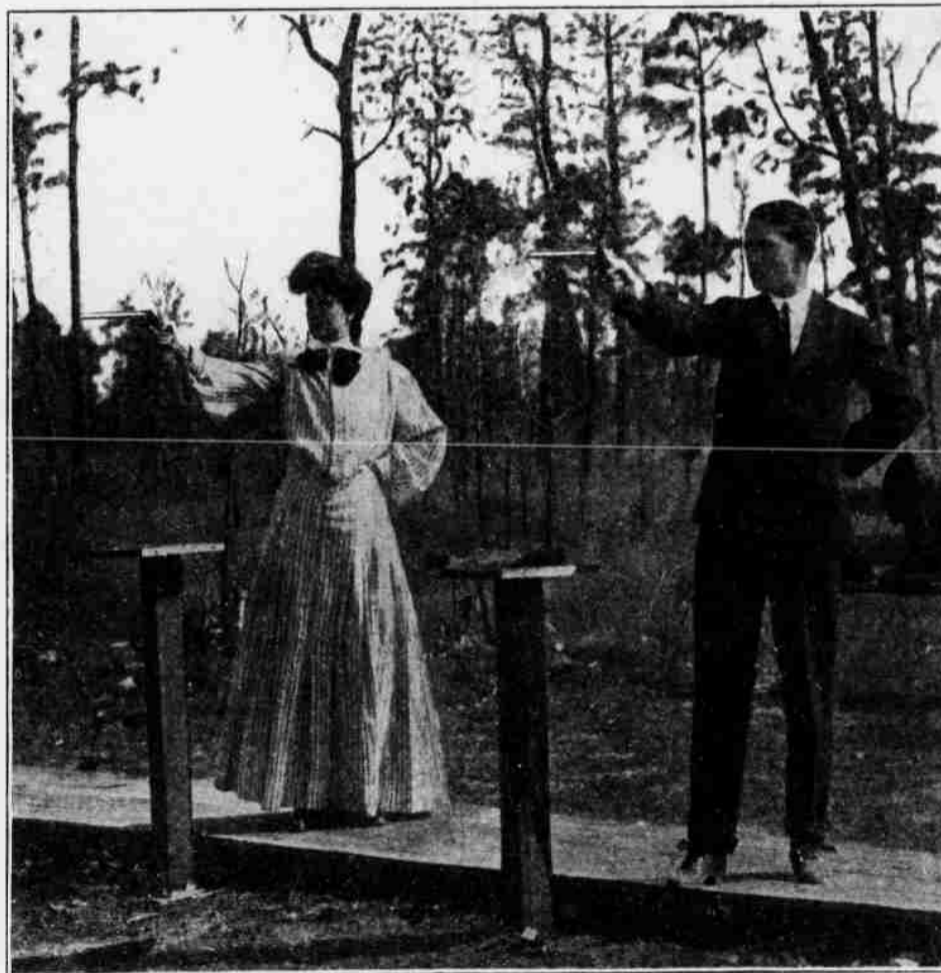

Miss Lucy K. Priest of Boston, as Blanche Bates in "The Girl of the Golden West," gowned in kahki skirt, blouse waist and with cartridge belt, revolver and sombrero, was a vivid reproduction of a now familiar type.

Mrs. Lowell Palmer, Jr., of Brooklyn, was stunning as Maxine Elliot in "Her Great Match," in a decollete gypsy costume of beribboned and bespangled black, with red poppy hair ornaments.

with powdered hair, white picture hat and gold headed staff.

The closing numbers were six pictures in which Miss Winants and Miss Malloy, Mrs. Jillson and Miss Priest, Mrs. Walker and Miss Barroll, Miss Sousa and Miss Pollard, Mrs. Palmer and Mrs. Wells, and Miss Spain and Miss Firth posed in couples.

Details of arrangement were in the hands of an active committee, including Mrs. Palmer, Mrs. Wells and Miss Barroll. Mrs. I. C. Bates Dana of Great Barrington, assisted in "making-up," and FASCINATING SPORT.

Miss Marjorie Winants of Bayonne, N. J., as Adele Ritchie in "The Social Whirl," dressed in tailor-made riding costume of black, with sailor hat and crop, was a striking reproduction of the class of outdoor girl Pinehurst sees much of.

Miss Helen Sousa of New York, as Anna Held in "The Parisian Model," gowned in decollete gown of spangled white, with black picture hat, possessed all of the chic and dash of the original model; one of the most striking likenesses of the evening.

Miss Olive M. Spain of New York, was radiant as Lillian Russell in "Lady Teazle," gowned in decollete white and

Mr. J. E. Porter of Pittsburg, guarded the ticket box. The Carolina orchestra furnished music during the evening, and a megaphone kept the audience posted as to what was taking place.
