MANY EARLY SEASON GUESTS

Thanksgiving Finds Large and Congenial Company Assembled.

"House Counts" in Advance of Previous Years and Bookings for Future Satisfactory.

THE opening of The Holly Inn literally found guests waiting for the doors to swing back, a dozen or more being accommodated for a week previous to the formal opening upon the twentieth, when many new faces were added, and Thanksgiving time finds the largest early season "house count" in the history of the hotel. Bookings for the immediate future are also satisfactory in every way, old and new friends being included in the big company which will once more enjoy life at this delightful hostelry.

Work of the summer has been important with various additions in the way of bath suites, improved steam heating facilities, new roofing, and general renovation of the rooms throughout the building, a very pleasing feature being the redecoration of the billiard, lounging and writing rooms in Pompeian red, making the house better prepared than ever before to care for its host of loyal friends.

It is the same old Holly Inn to be sure, but so neat and so thoroughly new is everything that it is hard to realize that a dozen years have elapsed since its opening, for the changes here have been gradual and the maintenance perfect. But best of all there is still the same air of luxury and comfort; the same atmosphere of coziness and good cheer, which have always made the hotel home in every meaning of the word, not only to old but new patrons. Just a subtle something which finds its way to the heart the moment one steps inside and which remains until the lingering departure.

The vine-clad verandas with their great easy chairs, have never been more inviting, and the same birds are in the favorite trees, rejoicing, as in the past, in glorious sunshine and perfect air; a joy which is contagious. The same appetizing cuisine is being served in the dining room, and the same painstaking and thoughtful service is found in every department.

The regular Sunday evening concerts and semi-weekly dance nights, anticipated by the entire Village, were begun during the week, and will be continued throughout the season. Manager and Mrs. Creamer return and upon the staff are many familiar faces. Completely equipped in every department the hotel opens and completely equipped it closes, and its cordial welcome is alike, for old friends and new.
