SATURDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 12, 1908.

PRICE FIVE CENTS

A FIELD WITH DOG AND GUN

Excellent Early Season Bags Rule
With the Quail Hunters.

Numerous Wild Turkeys Add Zest to Sport and an Occasional Woodcock Gives Variety.

THE opening week of December has provided excellent sport for the quail hunters, and while an abundance of food is making the birds rather hard to find, owing to the fact that it is not necessary for them to range widely, excellent bags are the rule. Added interest is being given by the presence of several flocks of wild turkeys and the bagging of an occasional woodcock, with a rabbit or wild dove, now and then, for those who care to shoot them.

John C. Spring of Boston, carries off honors for the best average, sixty quail in six trips; the best single day's kill falling to J. D. Foot of Rye, and Leonard Tufts, who secured twenty-six in a day's hunt. Mr. Spring, who is here for the winter, will spend much time in the field, and Mr. Foot is rounding out his annual visit, more interested in the breaking of his dog than in shooting.

I. D. H. Ralph of Philadelphia, returns for his usual visit and finds his aim as true as ever; Mrs. Ralph often his companion in the field.

Mr. and Mrs. William P. Simpson and Master Simpson of Overbrook, have gone after their usual visit, planning to return again, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Beatty of New York, were among the early comers.

John Stambough and T. D. Wilkerson of Youngstown, O., and F. R. Huntington of Columbus, and D. B. Kane and Charles W. Wilhelm of Philadelphia, C. A. Lockwood, H. R. Mallinson and J. Hartford Chichester of New York, are now enjoying the sport.

William Bryce, Jr., of New York, who is here for the winter, is much in the field and a number are booked for the week to come, including George F. Blake and Fordyce Blake of Worcester, Wade L. Cunningham and party of New York, and Benjamin T. Thaw of Pittsburg.

PINEHURST DOGS LEAD.

Everywhere Pinehurst dogs are now leading, a letter from Dr. Wallace Vail of Greenwich, Conn., giving a diary telling of the development of Pinehurst Jess, a puppy by Old Pont and Rosemont Spec, being of special interest:

OCTOBER 26—First day out. Full of hunt but she did nothing of consequence.

OCTOBER 29—Trailed a partridge, but only made part of a point. Chased very bad. Bird was killed next fly and she pointed it dead. Two woodcock were also killed, but Jess did not pay any attention to them until they were dead.

OCTOBER 31—This was her starting point. I killed 9 woodcock in two hours and 6 of them were over her individual points. After the first bird she was very staunch on point but broke shot.

NOVEMBER 2—Killed 3 woodcock and 2 partridges, Jess pointing 1 woodcock and 1 partridge.

NOVEMBER 7—Killed 8 woodcock, Jess finding and pointing 4 of them.

NOVEMBER 9—Killed 3 woodcock and 2 partridges, Jess pointing 2 woodcock.

NOVEMBER 28—Killed 4 woodcock, Jess pointing 1 of them.

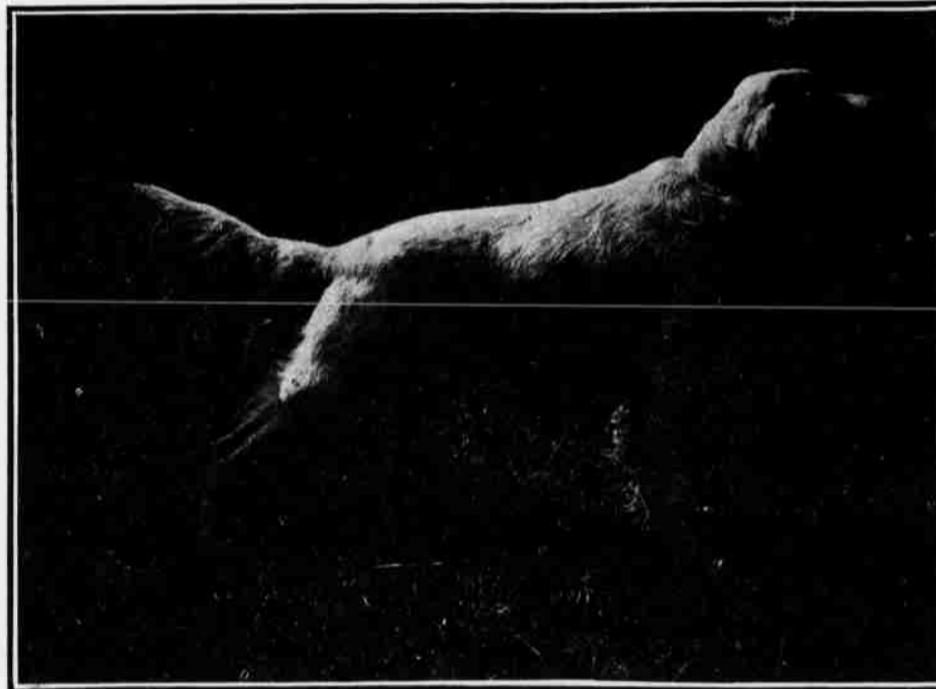

N. B.—In addition Jess has found and pointed quite a number of partridges that I have not killed.

GOLD MINE ON GOLF COURSE.

Ingenious Lad Rapidly Accumulating
Small Christmas Fortune.

"Talking about gold mines in the vicinity," says an observant golfer, "there's one right on the golf course—the pond on the tenth hole—and an ingenious lad is working it for all its worth.

"Seventy-five cents for oil cloth was the first investment, and this placed over a dry goods box made a very satisfactory

CALIFORNIA BELL BOY OF THE PINEHURST KENNELS.

NOVEMBER 13—Hunted about an hour and killed 2 woodcock. This day she learned to back at sight and will do so now as far as she can see a dog.

NOVEMBER 14—Killed 11 woodcock and 4 partridges, Jess pointing 4 woodcock and 2 partridges in company with 3 dogs. She also pointed a partridge that was out of gunshot when it flushed.

NOVEMBER 16—Killed 8 woodcock and 2 partridges, Jess pointing 3 woodcock (not feeling well and being sick until November 22).

NOVEMBER 24—Killed 8 woodcock, only taking a short hunt. Jess found and pointed 3 and never failed to back Trixie in all her points. (Not feeling quite right yet.)

NOVEMBER 27—Only a short hunt, Jess feeling better and showing her former speed and spirit. Killed 4 woodcock, Jess finding and pointing 3 of them.

boat in which to pole about the pond; the net receipts of the first day's search being a dollar and a quarter.

"The craft is a bit hard to handle, for it lists dangerously to port and starboard, with a tendency to dip at the prow and sink at the stern, but the clever skipper has solved the difficulties of navigation and is rapidly accumulating a small fortune for use on Christmas presents."

Box Party at Pineview School.

A general invitation is extended to Village guests to attend a box party and ice cream supper to be given at the Pineview School on Friday evening of the coming week at seven o'clock. Music will be furnished by Miss Alexina Hardy of Raleigh. The school is some three miles north of the Village and reached over the "McKenzie's Mills" road.

R. M. HAMILTON WINNER

Defeats C. T. Dunham in Final Round of Autumn Golf Tourney.

Perfect Weather, Good Field and Close Play All Contribute to Success of Event.

PERFECT weather, a good field and close play all contributed to the success of the annual Autumn golf tournament, R. M. Hamilton of the Wykagyl Golf Club, Pelham, N. Y., carrying off the honors in both medal and match play.

In qualification Mr. Hamilton led the field with a card of eighty-six, five strokes better than L. H. Roberts of the Salem, Mass., Golf Club, who was second in ninety-one, with C. T. Dunham of Brae Burn, third in ninety-five.

In the final match round for the President's cup, Mr. Hamilton and Mr. Dunham fought to a finish, the winner rallying, three down at the turn and taking six holes in order coming home, winning on the sixteenth green, by three up and two to play.

In the consolation finals C. P. Fay of Chicopee Falls, defeated John R. Goodall of St. Louis, by five and four, Mr. Goodall winning the first round in this class on the nineteenth hole from Thomas J. Check of New York. Another extra hole match was in the first round for the President's cup, in which H. W. Ormsbee of the Alpine Club, Fitchburg, defeated C. B. Hudson of the Rochester (L. I.) Country Club, on the twentieth green.
