HARK TO 'ER! AUCH-AOU-O-O!

Fox Hunting Season in Full Swing and Enthusiasm Runs High.

Society Joins in the Chase and Men and Women Vie for Possession of the Brush.

THE fox hunting season swung wide open during the week with the first meet of the Pinehurst Hunt, two corking runs and a kill resulting, and enthusiasm mounts high in anticipation of the weeks to come. Socially Pinehurst has taken fox hunting "on" as it has never gone into it before, and in those who lead the chase women vie with men for the possession of the "brush" and to be in "at the death."

with the sounding of the mellow notes of the horn.

"Hark to 'er! Hark to 'er! Hurray Roxy! Hurray Ben! Hark to 'er! Hark to 'er!"

"Auch-Auch! Auo! Aou! Aou-o-o! Aou-o-o!"

THIRD RUN THIS MORNING.

The third run of the season is booked for this (Saturday) morning, the start to be made from The Holly Inn at seven o'clock sharp. A general invitation is extended, and many who do not ride will follow along the country roads in light teams.

ANNUAL CHRISTMAS TREES.

They Provide Never-to-be-Forgotten Evenings for Children of Vicinity.

Big crowds attended the annual Christmas trees for the white and negro children of the Village and vicinity held in The Harvard lobby Monday and Tuesday

FEEDING THE PACK.

The pack is running like one dog, a blanket would cover it most of the time, and the music sets the blood tingling and makes pulses throb from the first wild cry of the strike and down through the mad bellow to the angry snarls of the death struggle, mingling with the wild haloo of the huntsman and the shouts of the riders.

Among those women who are always at the front are Mrs. J. Livingston Gradin, Mrs. Leonard Tufts, Miss Blanche Tapley, Miss Theodate Clough and Miss Henrietta Thaw; others in the field including Messrs. Benj. T. Thaw, Mr. Wm. Thaw, Mr. Curtis Rand, Mr. J. S. Walker, Mr. James McDonald, Mr. John McDonald, Mr. James P. Travers, Mr. Gifford Horton, Mr. W. H. Browning, Mr. M. C. Browning, Mr. F. W. Sparks and Dr. Myron W. Marr.

Two hunts and possibly three are scheduled weekly for the balance of the season, the invitation list being general, and many social features are planned in the way of hunt breakfasts and dances which will bring into close fellowship the congenial company which gathers evenings. The room was transformed with decorations of Christmas green, a monster cedar tree adorned with varicolored electric lights, with gay festoons and ornaments of tinsel the central feature of decoration; life gaiety and merrymaking reigning supreme.

Santa Claus (Mr. Canby Steele) was in personal attendance each evening and assisted by Mr. Thos. H. Taylor as master of ceremonies and various people interested in making the affair a success. The evening's programs included songs and recitations by the children and all were remembered in the distribution of the presents, a bag of candy and orange and a useful present going to each.

The tree for negro children was attended by many of the Village guests, but the tree for the white children was private in its character and as a result the attendance and interest showed a marked increase.

Something over two hundred dollars was raised by subscription among the guests of the Village to provide for the expense, guests at The Holly Inn and the cottagers, contributing liberally.
