SATURDAY MORNING, JANUARY 1, 1910.

FIVE CENTS

ENJOYED BY ENTIRE VILLAGE

Holiday Merrymaking Runs Riot at First of Season's Cotillions.

Decorations, Favors and Figures in Keeping with the Season and Program One of Novelty.

SELDOM has an evening provided more genuine pleasure than the Xmas Cotillion at The Inn, enjoyed by the entire Village and a pleasant prophecy for the more formal social events which it inaugurates and which add brilliancy to the winter. Decorations, figures and favors all emphasized the spirit of the Holiday season and merrymaking ran riot among the dancers which a big crowd of onlookers followed with an interest which made them mental participants.

Exquisite in its decorations was the music hall, its special feature two twin Christmas trees resting on either side of the stage, hung with small crimson bells, strung with tinsel and flanked with bright-berried holly. Entwining wires running from the centre of the hall to all sides, were streamers of English ivy, with large crimson bells at four corners; a monster cluster of mistletoe in the centre. Above the entrance and alcoves were streamers of ivy and on the wall panels large crimson cardboard bells, which were also used with red and white ribbons, for chair markers. The favor tables were in white, strung with holly; the finishing touch of all, four huge stockings (two red and two white) which hung from the fireplace mantel.

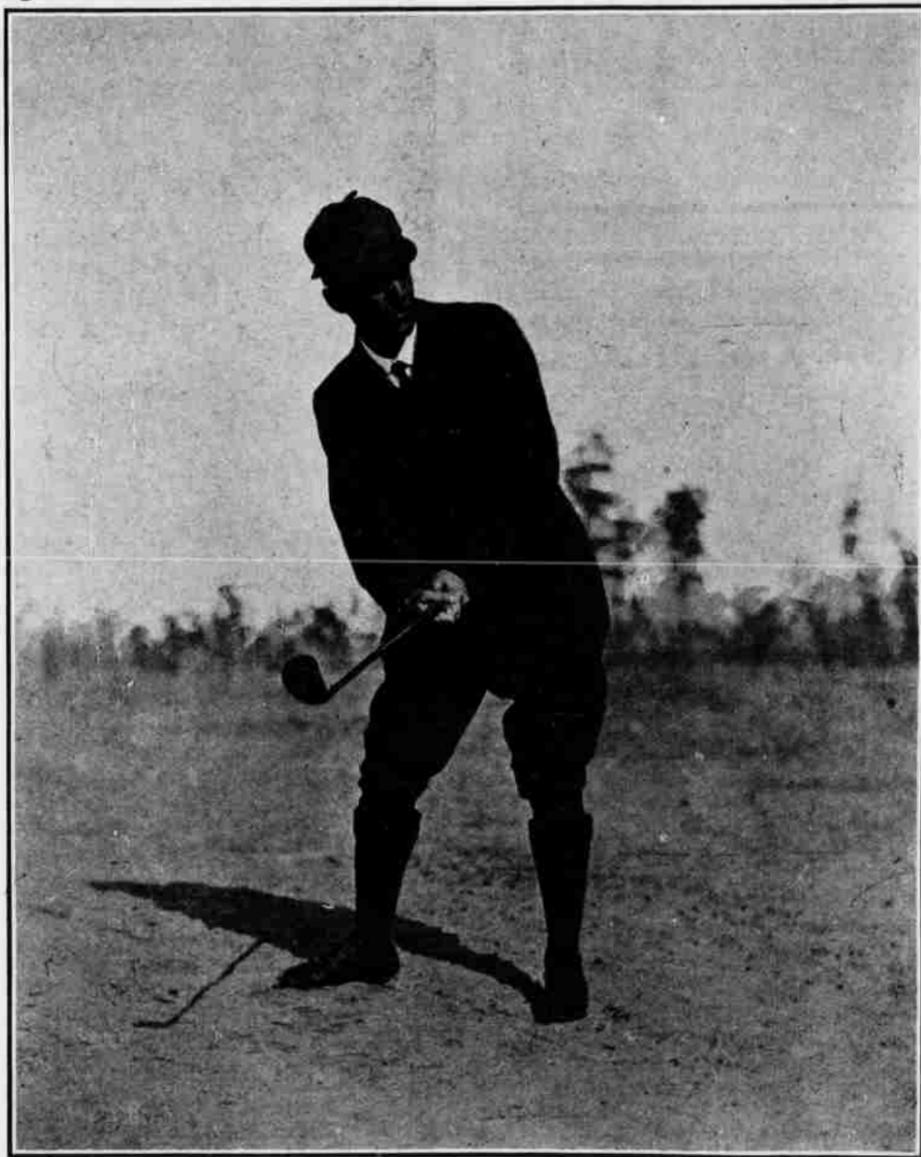

The program began at nine with a grand march led by Mr. H. S. Haskell of New York and Miss Theodate Clough of Lynn, a program of novelty and surprise following, marches also being led by Mr. Julian T. Bishop of Bridgeport and Miss Ethel Check of New York, and Mr. J. S. Walker of Orange, Va., and Miss Maude Hapgood of Boston. The novelties in figures included a burlesque ballet in which young men garbed in tarlatan skirts worn over their evening suits, won or lost partners by their ability to dance; the Cinderella number in which young women were claimed for partners with slippers selected from a basket and young men by personal articles drawn from a hat; the matching of all nation flags, and jig-saw puzzle pictures made from colored postals.

The familiar potato race was also enjoyed by both men and women, the possession of a colored ball meant a dance, and the men struggled vainly with bonnets and sashes which they were required to tie in bowknots, always the consciousness that delay meant another "left over" man for a partner causing disastrous haste; several "Paul Jones" and "puss in the corner" figures adding variety. The favors were mistletoe and holly sprays, Christmas toys, all nation flags, tissue plumes, boxes of confectionery, Pall Mall cigarettes, and novelties.

Haskell of New York and Miss Theodate Clough of Lynn, Mr. Charles Horton of Williamsport and Miss Elizabeth Johnson of Springfield, Ohio, Dr. Myron W. Eagerly anticipated is the annual "house warming" hop at The Carolina, Saturday evening next, always delightfully informal, none the less enjoyable and participated in by the entire colony.

Julian T. Bishop Captures Qualification by Narrow Margin and Keen Play Rules Throughout.

M. J. CONDON of Wykagyl, captured the President's cup in the Thursday afternoon's final round of the sixth annual Holiday week golf tournament, defeating his club mate, W. K. At the turn the Wykagyl player was three down, but he squared matters on the fifteenth green, alternating a win and a lose on the sixteenth and seventeenth, taking the eighteenth and the match. In the second round Mr. Condon defeated Julian T. Bishop of Brooklawn, Ct., four and two, and in the first, C. B. Hudson, of New Suffolk, two and one.

Mr. Gillett's semi-final was with Wilbur C. Johnson of Canoebrook, whom he defeated three and two, his second a close one with E. B. Fay of the St. Louis Field Club which a halved hole on the home green decided, and his first, a victory from J. D. C. Rumsey of New York, three and two.

The match of the week was Mr. Fay's nineteen-hole victory from T. Ashley Sparks of Baltusrol just preceding his defeat by Mr. Gillett.
