"RAN HIM OFF HIS FEET"

New Years' Day Fox Ignores Craft and Resorts to Speed

Hunt is Outdistanced and Only Master and Huntsman Witness Late Afternoon Kill

IDEAL the day for a brisk gallop through the woods, the New Years' fox hunt attracted a large and enthusiastic field, with excitement, incident and variety to make the day a memorable one. Shortly after leaving Pinehurst a intricate trail was struck, which unraveled an hour known. Then the returning Master joined in the chase and relentlessly the pair followed, determined that the New Year must start right, with a reward in a kill, late in the afternoon. "Fleet and powerful as he was," says the Master, "we literally ran him off his feet, for confident of his speed, he resorted to it entirely. I have always contended that the red could be caught if he would keep running, and this run satisfies me fully in this particular."

Dancing began at nine and ceased at midnight, refreshments served at intermission. The list of dancers included Mr. Kendall and Miss Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Patten, Mr. and Mrs. Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. Waters, Mr. and Mrs. Dryfoos, Mr. and Mrs. Parks, Mr. Young and Mrs. Kendall, Mr. Gresham and Mrs. Phillips, later, found a monster red fox well under way and flying with the Northeast wind.

Ignoring ruse, this fleet fellow went five miles straightaway at heart breaking pace which gave the hunters hardly time to breathe, and keyed the pack to concert pitch for Reynard's lead was hardly three hundred yards. Swinging into "Texas Swamp" a clever ruse gave a lead which several wide circles increased, until fox and hounds finally outdistanced not only hunt but Master and Huntsman. Presently, however, they were located but the hunters had had enough of it and turned homeward gladly, only to be located two hours later, some fifteen miles from Pinehurst, riding straight away from it, with the confidence of the hopelessly lost.

In the meantime Huntsman Nat, close upon the heels of the pack, was speeding back and forth between Aberdeen and Jackson Springs, gaining inch by inch in the fastest race this veteran has ever

The Golfer's Mistake

"Not so bad," commented Cleek, "went out in sixty and came back in seventy-two!" "Yes'n he orter stayed out!" muttered the patient caddy.
