WINCHESTER

Repeating Shotguns and Shotgun Shells

WIN THE OFFICIAL AMATEUR SEASON'S AVERAGE

Dr. W. S. Spencer of St. Louis, Mo., won the International Association's contest for the Amateur Season's Average for 1911. He shot at 2,100 targets in various tournaments and scored 96.28%, a record that all amateurs agree is a wonderful one. In winning this great trap shooting honor which so many amateurs annually strive for, Dr. Spencer shot a Winchester Repeating Shotgun and Winchester Loaded Shells. His record is conclusive proof of their strong and uniform shooting qualities, for such shooting as Dr. Spencer did could only have been done with the best possible equipment. Dr. Spencer's victory and the winning of the Professional Season's Average for 1911 by J. R. Taylor, with a Winchester Repeating Shotgun and Winchester Loaded Shells emphasizes the wisdom of shooting the make of gun and shells that always helps, and never handicaps skill. That Winchester Shotguns and Winchester Loaded Shells are such a combination is shown by their consistent and conspicuous winnings.
