A TOURNAMENT OF CLASS

matic in the first set, Little winning chiefly because his shots were the more dangerous when they went in. He became more unsteady in the second and lost it and also the third, Bishop getting his driving game working well. No rest was taken, and Bishop maintained his advantage, only to lose it and the set with unexpected suddenness. Again in the fifth set Little was in difficulties with the game 5-2 and score 30-love, but he fought grimly, although exhausted, and finally won out, 7-5. It was a curious ending, for Bishop seemed to have the match won and Little was barely able to keep going. The latter's short game was very good, a back-handed cross court shot being particularly deadly. It was often splendid tennis, but both men lacked the certainty that is usually theirs.

"The men's doubles was conceded to Little and Bishop, and they won easily from Hall and Goldstein in the George Chapman, Nyack, 6-4, 6-1.

SEMI-FINAL—Little beat Goldstein, 6-3, 6-2; Bishop beat Coppell, by default.

final after the latter had unexpectedly beaten James and Durant in a well earned match.

"The prizes have rarely been excelled in beauty or good taste and details of management were perfection which may well be taken as standard. Pinehurst also with its diversified attractions, and excellent hotel accommodations made a most delightful impression upon the visitors."
