

WAS A BRILLIANT ENDING

Thrilling Run and Exciting Kill Features of Closing Fox Hunt

Reynard's Doubling and Log Hopping Prove of No Avail and Sight Race Ends in the Death

A BRILLIANT end to a splendid season was Monday's fox hunt, a brisk start ending in a thrilling run and exciting kill. Ideal conditions made trailing easy but reynard was wary and did not wait for greetings, gaining fully an hour in his start and doing no loitering. Rough going it was for the fox picked the most impossible places and gradually the lead was reduced until the pack broke forth in the joyous medley of the warm trail.

Reynard then resorted to a series of log hopping and doubling which has not been surpassed during the winter keeping close to the Village and mainly in scrub oak cover, but gradually the lead was reduced, a clever double failed and it was a sight race to the death, with Miss Chapin first in. Others in the field were the Misses Hefferman, Reed and Durant, Mrs. Lovett and Messrs. Chapin, Hitchcock, Banes, Gouside, Moore, Durant, Telfer and Rich.

For the immediate future the congenial group which has enjoyed the sport with Mr. and Mrs. Twitty, is planning numerous rides and picnics, announcement of which is made elsewhere.

BEST SELECTED SCORES

Phillips, Pottle and Becker Lead in Novel Competition

C. N. Phillips, F. B. Pottle and C. L. Becker were one, two three in the Tin Whistle best selected score competition, six on each nine, scoring forty-three, forty-four and forty-five, only a stroke ahead of Spencer Waters and A. C. Aborn who tied for fourth at forty-six. Numerous ties bunched the remainder of the field, sixty-one marking the limit. The scores:

The Grouchometer

The "grouchometre" is Paris' latest fad, no other than a philosophic novelty, not without its adaptations for the golfer or trap-shooter, because it makes light of shortcomings. Have you had a disappointment? Has fate been unkind? Consult your grouchometer. It is simply a little schedule of possible future misfortunes which one draws up beforehand. In nine cases out of ten one finds that some mischance that actually befalls one is not on the list. Why? Because it has not entered into one's mental calculations, because no real importance has been given to it in calm reflective moments. Therefore, reasons French logic, why worry about it? If the misfortune is on the list then there is still less reason for worry because if we expected it it shows that we had time to think things out and the case finds us armed against its possibilities.

SEASON'S AVERAGE

1911

For the Tenth Time

Again the Official Professional Season's Trap Shooting Average was won by Winchester Red W goods. This coveted honor, which is the goal and ambition of trap shooters throughout the year, was captured by John R. Taylor, of Columbus, Ohio. His phenomenal score of
