POLO FIELD DEDICATED

Monday's Gymkhana is Enjoyed by Several Hundred Onlookers

Monday afternoon's Gymkhana dedicated the new polo field with due ceremony, the program one suggestive of the sort of entertainment which is to be provided when the game is thoroughly established here. From start to finish there was snap and go, variety, incident, amusement and excitement. Interest centered in brisk competition for the prizes awarded for the largest number of points won, H. H. Kirkpatrick and Charles Banes leading with totals of twelve and eleven. There were also prizes in the horsemanship test, won by M. D. R. Bullin; the scarf race, won by Mrs. Leonard Tufts; the egg and spoon race, won by Miss Betsy Baird; the ring tilting, won by Mr. Banes; and in the change of costume race, won by Mr. Kirkpatrick.

The most amusing feature of the afternoon was undoubtedly the costume race in which the men dashed down the field like a squad of Cossacks, dismounted, removed coats, turned them inside out, replaced them and scampered back to the finish; the horses apparently enjoying the event as much as their riders. Of much the same character was the scarf race in which the contestants rode down the field in mixed couples, turned a stake and back to the finish. It was easy going, but the steeds in many cases, failed to turn together and the struggles to regain the scarf were most amusing; the race to the finish, however, close.

The familiar ring tilting or lance and ring contest, was as popular as ever, the trick to gather in with a long lance, as many hanging rings as possible in a trip down the field. The horsemanship test was ridden in pairs, the difficulty arising from the fact that the mounts objected very strenuously to the strange combination of waving bunting which they were forced to approach. The egg and spoon race was not without its trials, the trick being to carry an egg in a spoon across the field and back, without touching it with the fingers. Most of the contestants spent their time searching for the missing and most elusive sphere.

Details of the afternoon were in charge of Riding Master Taylor assisted by Riding Master Sankey and Starter Eddy. That the location of the field is ideal was demonstrated to all; the background excellent and the presence of numerous trees affording refreshing shade to the onlookers. For the immediate future a second event is planned with several novelties, among them a football match and driving competition for women; style, accuracy and time to count. There will also be events for the children and numerous attractive prizes.
