in a halve. On the twelfth both players lay alike on the green on their seconds, a screaming putt winning for Topping. Both were well away on the thirteenth, Evans losing the hole, five-four, on his putt which hung on the edge of the cup. Two prettier drives than those recorded on the fourteenth would be difficult to find, downhill with the wind, both players making over three hundred yards. Evans, however, made the edge of the green on his second and went down in four, while the trap at the left and beyond the green, cost Topping the hole. Evans was undeniably outplayed on the twice, got out on his third and picked up. Both balls went screaming down the course on the eighteenth with little advantage gained, but Evans made a perfect second to the edge of the green, while a topped approach landed Topping in a trap guarding the green. Topping played three and found himself still in the trap and some feet farther away from the hole. His next shot placed him in the former location and the fifth rolled over the edge to the fair green.

When the pair turned towards the nineteenth tee the Country Club crowd moved over behind them, not alone visitors, but caddies, chauffeurs, equestrians and a few carriages. Evans had the honor and he sent a sweet one straight down the alley, but Topping had a trump up his sleeve and gained some twenty feet in short fifteenth for he had an advantage on the drive which he failed to hold, with Topping in the rough. The Greenwich player, however, made a fine approach and went down in three, for a halve, which was repeated on the sixteenth with a pair of fours, a brilliant approach from the rough saving the hole for Topping who overcame much the same advantage which Evans had on the fifteenth.

Dormy two, it seemed to be all over when the pair lined up on the short seventeenth, but Topping's drive made one of the "fifty-seven varieties" of traps for which this hole is famous, while Evans was in a good position just short of the green. Topping dug the sand once, distance. Evans did something funny on his second and the ball scurried away like a frightened rabbit only to halt at the foot of a whisker bunker some fifty feet away. Topping's second was somewhat of a romper with a tendency to dodge, just missing the trap at the left. Evans approached to the farther edge and just beyond the green, while Topping poked his ball up uncomfortably close to the hole. Evans made a brilliant stab for a win, but the ball was a bit shy and passed on. Topping's putt went down in four and before the crowd realized just what had happened Evans was hurrying across the green to extend his congratulations. The cards:
