recreation and moving on to the journey's end in the same leisurely fashion. And I might add," concluded Mr. Briggs, "that the Village of Pinehurst will linger as a bright spot in memory. We have enjoyed every minute of our visit."

Mr. Briggs is much interested in the study of cars adapted to touring and their equipment. The test, he says, is a severe one and the equipment adds much to the pleasure of the journey. The true delights of touring, he believes, come through appreciation of the joys of at least occasional camping out.
