A BILLION FOR AUTOMOBILES

do you see the farmer plodding along the road behind his mare. Today he goes in his light, gasoline-fed runabout. They all do, from New York State to the Dakotas. And a farmer is the last person in the world whom you'd accuse of being extravagant. With the raise not in prices but in our standard of living came the automobile—came to stay. That's why one of every thirty people owns them. That's why we spend a billion a year on the newest models, why old models bring the bill up to nearly three billion.

A luxury! You still think so? Ask your butcher. He owns one.

Leases Jackson Springs Hotel

The Jackson Springs Hotel, long noted as a summer resort, has been leased by Mr. Leonard Tufts, who will try the experiment of opening it for a short time during the winter as well as during the summer. Tradition has it that the Indians were first to appreciate the curative powers of the wonderful spring which gushes from a rock in the centre of a stream, but bears no relation to the water which surrounds it.
