MIDSEASON'S FLOOD TIDE

Returning Friends Numerous in Hotel Arrivals who Come for March

The Week One of Many Dinners and Diversified Recreations in the Open Air

THE WEEK has been one of many dinners, among the most unique a birthday anniversary spread tendered at The Carolina by Mr. and Mrs. Justus Kendall of Bethlehem. The novelty was a table reproducing in miniature the much-trapped seventeenth hole on the number two golf course; tee, bunkers, traps, putting green and background of trees with the surrounding sedge grass, a storm shelter house and a stray pony. The favors were violet boutonnières, typical of Spring days, and tiny rakes and picks, suggestive of the clubs best adapted to play the hole! ¶ Mr. and Mrs. George N. Towle of Boston were hosts at an elaborate Carolina spread for a group including Mr. and Mrs. Parker W. Whittemore, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Spring, Mr. and Mrs. William Merrill and Mrs. C. A. Sinclair, all of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Walker of Minneapolis, Miss E. Marie Sinclair and Miss Beatrice Slack of New York. The table was lavishly decorated with cut flowers, and the favors were clay jugs and pine cone baskets from the Arts and Crafts Shop. Bridge followed dinner. ¶ Mr. E. M. Slayton of Manchester, N. H., gave a stag party at the Lift-the-Latch cabin, Pinebluff, for Messrs. W. E. Wells, J. M. Wells and Arthur W. Wells of Newell, W. Va., W. F. Lewis of East Liverpool, Ohio, and L. M. Folsom of Manchester. ¶ The home of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Newcomb at Lake View was the destination point for a jolly equestrian picnic, and Mrs. William L. Hurd of Pittsburgh entertained at "The Pines" Thursday with afternoon tea in honor of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. J. V. Hurd (nee Dorothy Campbell). ¶ Out of doors numerous events have combined with the annual Spring golf tournament which concludes today. ¶ The arrivals mark midseason's flood tide and there will be little change in numbers until April.
