Smith Gols—Mexicans War

MEXICO CITY—Willie Smith, the American golfer, has not disappeared, as reports from the United States would seem to indicate, but is engaged in his daily tasks as professional at the Mexican Country Club, just outside Mexico City. Smith, who was once national open champion of the United States, was rather amused than otherwise when informed that his friends across the border were fearful that some mishap had befallen him.

Fortune and Misfortune!

"Have you heard the latest? Brown's wife has run off with his chauffeur."

"Mercy, what a pity! He was such a good chauffeur! Brown will never be able to replace him."

THE ADVERTISING GOLFERS

They Arrive With Whoop and Rush on Today's Trains

The advertising men are coming, coming with the usual whoop and rush today for their annual winter tournament, January 12—17, inclusive, and then some! ¶ Some idea of the class of this aggregation may be gathered from the following committees which have the affair in charge:

This is from the pen of the Association poet, duly illumined by the Association artist:

Boy, if the phone should ring,
If any one comes to call,
Inform him I've gone to Pinehurst—
To drop in again next fall.
Say I've a date at a certain tee
Where my friends, the sand traps, wait in glee;
And tell him the doc has ordered me
To keep my eye on the ball.

And then, if the boss should sigh,
Or for my presence seek,
Tell him the truth—don't lie—
Say that my nerves were weak.
For what is a job to a brassie shot
That whistles away to an untrapped spot—
To the thrill of a well-cut mashie shot
Or the sweep of a burnished cleek?
