HEYDLER WILL SHOW 'EM!

Baseball Secretary Enters United But Does Not Expect to Win

Secretary-Treasurer John Heydler of the National Baseball League, has inscribed his name on the entrance book for the United Championship, and, incidentally, he has explained that he does not expect to win the trophy!

"There has, however, been some stuff in the newspapers about my golf that is little short of base calumny", explained the official with a sly smile, "and I propose to show 'em that I have not been 'devastating golf courses' down here.

"Been round under ninety on Number two course where it takes a steady hand to tee a ball between the traps, to say nothing of playing it, and here's my attested card. (It figured eighty-nine).

"What's more," continued Mr. Heydler, stowing the card away very carefully in a big wallet, "the reference that has been made to my clubs is, to say the least, unkind, (and here the secretary smiled again) but the newspaper boys will have their fun which all goes at space rates, and every little counts between hay and grass.

"Yes, I'm going to play in qualification Monday just to show 'em what I can do, and I hope I don't get 'buck fever' in which case I shall probably preserve the score for my personal collection, and still leave the golfing world in doubt as to just what I can do.

"Fact is, golf is not my long suit, but it's a world-beater to clean off the brain cob-webs, and Pinehurst is a pennant winner every season when it comes to the gamble on the green."
