FOR THE YOUNG FOLKS

And, Also, Not Without Its Interest
for Grown Ups

THE TIME to lay the foundation for a successful vegetable garden is in April and there are some general rules that experience lays down as the best to follow. In the first place, the garden should be well planned. It should be known what crops are first to go into the ground and what is to follow them. Every available inch of space should be employed—and twice or three times over. In order to raise the most possible from any given area careful planning is necessary. And, as for planning, aside from consideration of succession, bear in mind that the best

Peas, intermediate	One quart
Peas, late	One quart
Peas, dwarf	One pint
Onion, sets	One quart
Onion, seed	One ounce
Beets, early	One ounce
String Beans	One quart
Tomato	One package
Eggplants	One package
Parsnips	One-half ounce
Cucumbers	One package
Muskmelons	One package
Squash, summer	One package
Squash, late	One package
Lettuce	One half ounce
Radish	One ounce

Parsnips, radish and lettuce, it is hardly necessary to say, are the first crops to be planted outdoors. Time is gained by planting the others indoors—or most of them—at the earliest possible moment after the seed is received from the dealers.

"MISTRESS MARY, QUITE CONTRARY, HOW DOES YOUR GARDEN GROW"

results are to be achieved by observing these rules:

Plant in rows, not in beds. ¶ Group vegetables that mature at the same time or attain the same height. ¶ Group the low growing vegetables so that they will not be shaded from the sun by taller growing varieties. ¶ Practice rotation. Do not plant corn in the same place where corn was grown last season. Root crops should find a new location. The cabbage tribe, peas and beans, salad plants, tomatoes, peppers and eggplants should all go in new places.

The quantity of seed to be ordered is a matter of very considerable importance. For a family of six, the following will answer all purposes and, for smaller families, or for larger, the list may be divided or multiplied accordingly:

Cabbage	Package
Cauliflower	Package
Corn, early	One and one half pints
Corn, late	One pint
Peas, extra early	One quart

In planning for succession, some assistance may be gained from a study of the following plan, practiced successfully by an expert amateur:

- In Row 1, radishes and lettuce are planted.
- In Row 2, beet*.
- In Row 3, green beans and peas.
- In Row 4, early corn.
- In Row 5, tomatoes.
- In Row 6, parsnips and carrots.

As these crops mature, the following plan is followed:

- Row 1, mid-season corn.
- Row 2, eggplant or cauliflower.
- Row 3, late lettuce or kale.
- Row 4, lima beans.
- Row 5, late cabbage between the tomatoes.
- Row 6, carrots and parsnips remain.

There is no better advice for the beginner than that which directs him to study carefully and thoroughly the catalogues of reliable nurserymen. Nowadays, the catalogues issued by such houses may be believed and descriptions may be depended upon. In many of these excellent cultural directions are included and
