OUR NEXT DOOR NEIGHBOR!

farms that are opening are of the type that attract modern farmers who believe in modern methods. It is not more than half a gallon of gasoline down to the big Gates farm, one of the biggest things of its kind in the State, and from Pine Bluff to the Marlboro farm owned by Henry A. Page, is about two looks and a halloo. The Gates farm is a big experiment by Northern men of intelligence and means. The Page farm is an experiment by a Southern man of similar qualifications. Both experiments are out of the ordinary and both are of the greatest importance. Both are also of decided interest to the visitor, for they are good to look upon, no matter how the experiment works out in the long run. But they give evidence that they will be profitable as well as interesting to look at. † If you have never been over to Pine Bluff you had better pump up the tires, put some water in the radiator, load the family, turn down past the Country Club House, and hit the grit!
