

WINCHESTER

12, 16 and 20 Gauge
Light, Hammerless Repeating
Shotguns

Sportsmen differ as to whether a 12, 16 or 20 Gauge is the best shotgun for field shooting, but the knowing ones agree that the Winchester Model 1912 lightweight, hammerless repeater is the one best bet in the shotgun line. This Winchester being made in 12, 16 and 20 gauges permits an advocate of the big, medium or small bore to indulge his fancy and be sure of getting a gun that is true to its gauge in balance, weight and length. All three gauges of this model are made of specially selected materials. Nickel steel, which is twice as strong as ordinary gun steel, is used throughout for the metal parts in this Winchester. This means a lightweight gun without sacrificing safety or strength. This gun has a cross-bolt trigger lock, a smooth, quick and easy action, and a simple Take-Down system. It loads and unloads easily and its shooting qualities are not excelled by the highest priced double guns. There are many other pleasing and exclusive features of this Winchester which appeal to sportsmen that could be enumerated, but the gun itself is the best evidence of its quality and desirability.

Do You Suppose That

Ambassador Page, Frederick T. Gates of the Rockefeller Board, Edgar L. Marston and S. B. Chapin, bankers, William A. Slater of Washington, Benjamin F. Butler and George Maurice of New York and Raphael Pumpelly of Newport and Roger A. Derby and Charles T Crocker of Fitchburg, are all bad investors?

Well, they have all invested in land here from 300 to 15,00 acres.

I offer as an investment the best single 1118 acres of land, in the best section, on the main line of the Seaboard. Do you want it?

The Habitant

The habitant of Drowning Creek met his death in battle the other day. Dr. Achorn on the scene describes the occasion to us as follows:

"It may interest some of your guests to know that a party on the river under the auspices of the club shot a wild hog weighing 200 pounds—an old red fellow with ears like a bat. His father and his grandfather also lived in the swamp for a

Christmas Preparations

Christmas preparations are already in the minds of the forehanded. The Village will celebrate for the hardy in spirit with a fox hunt in the morning and a musical festival and general jamboree at The Carolina in the evening. Make your little plans accordingly.
