their last legs depending hopefully on the Board of Trade, with knockers and optimists, and more generous whole hearted assistance than the cynic would believe existed in the whole world.

The Cottage Colony and old friends of the section at Pinehurst have earned and secured the good will and lasting friendship of the community of which they are a part. In the same spirit that was found among the old Scotch settlers on the margin of Little River they assumed their part of the sacrifice, and without exception, where given the opportunity, contributed to the final victory of the Red team and the Sandhills.

Enrolled upon the books of the Board of Trade in that list which in times to come will be the honor roll of those that built the Community and inaugurated the principle of cheerful co-operation for the public good, the following are found from the village:

F. C. Abbe, R. A. Barrett, D. J. Black, J. M. Black, S. R. Black, W. O. Black, Mrs. E. C. Bliss, Mr. Bruce, G. McG. Cameron, Rev. T. A. Cheatham, T. P. Cheever, A. J. Clow, J. R. Cole, J. H. Craig, J. N. Currie, J. T. Currie, T. E. Currie, Paul Dana & Co., W. R. Deans, C. C. O. Edson, P. E. Estes, L. W. Evans, C. B. Fields, J. L. Fields, J. E. Fields, E. G. Fitzgerald, A. J. Fry, C. E. Harden, J. R. Hoffman, H. S. Houston, G. M. Howard, Charles B. Hudson, Robert Hunter, A. M. Johnson, John C. Kelly, J. A. Manning, Cary Maples, F. Maples, A. C. Donald, C. N. McDonald, Jerome McDonald, John McCleary, Eugene McKenzie, W. C. McKenzie, H. C. McKenzie, W. J. McNabb, J. R. McQueen, E. L. Merrow, J. J. Naile, Commodore J. T. Newton, Fred Knight, J. I. O'Brien, H. W. Ormsbee, Donald Parson, L. E. Pender, S. R. Phillips, H. W. Priest, J. B. Ritter, S. J. Ritter, D. J. Ross, R. C. Shannon, I. C. Sledge, Emery Smith, S. J. Stutts, Colonel S. A. Swigert, A. P. Thompson, J. C. Thompson, Leonard Tufts, F. W. Von Cannon, C. A. Warwick, H. G. Waring, C. A. Whittemore, R. E. Wicker, J. A. Wicker, M. Wicker, Andrew Williamson, William Wilson, Eugene Wogan, Mr. Wood.

The total contribution from the village is $544 to date, but a great many of our most public spirited citizens were not here or were not seen in the rapid campaign. This leaves us third of all the twenty allied towns, a very creditable position indeed considering the time of year and the population.

Besides the financial support Pinehurst should be credited with the Sheridan-like activities of those two twin dynamos, Tufts and McQueen. Mr. Tufts, like Paul Revere, rode from Aberdeen to Samareand gathering the golden harvest as he went. John McQueen invaded the Carthage country and brought back the pigskin every night loaded with the burnt offering.

The total contribution was $4,077.05, and some counties still to be heard from.

We are requested to express the hearty gratitude from the community to every single contributor, and to say that Frank Page, Leonard Tufts and Roger Derby, executive committee for managing this fund for the welfare of the entire section, will consider it a privilege to receive suggestions and the personal co-operation of every member in its administration. For it is theirs—it is everybody's—it is the public war chest in the opening battle in the pursuit of happiness.

The final official score was as follows:

More Prizes for Advertising Tourneys

Mr. William C. Freeman, chairman of the Tournament Committee of the Pinehurst Winter League of Advertising Interests, announces that a member of the association—Mr. Jason Rogers, publisher of the New York Globe—insists on celebrating his return to Pinehurst, after an absence of several seasons, by offering four additional prizes to be competed for during the week of the Advertising Tournament.

These prizes will be awarded in each class, men and women, to the player who, playing on handicap, will have Col. Bogey down for the greatest number of holes out of the 72 and 36 for men and women, respectively.

In order that there will be as little duplication of prize winners as possible, no winner of the event scheduled for Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, in the 72 medal rounds for men and the 36 medal rounds for women, can win the Roger's prize.

Low Score for Number Three

Parker W. Whittemore not only divided honors with Rev. T. A. Cheatham in the Tin Whistle four ball match last Monday, but he brought in the lowest card that has been recorded this year on number three course. Since the course has been remade and improved during the Summer, this stands now as the record.
