Down the Lumbee

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Maurice introduced two of their friends to the beauties of the Lumbee on Monday. The party canoed down the river for a trifle of some 25 miles. Some canoeing parties are being made up for the coming week and there is talk of a race in prospect on the Lumbee. It ought to be a very interesting event.

Latest Arrivals at the Pine Crest Inn

Mr. John Bredemus of New York, the all round athletic champion of the world, arrived at the Pine Crest Inn this week and promptly broke into our golf columns by his remarkably good showing on the links, starting in on Tuesday by tying for seventh place against 109 other contestants, in the Qualifying Round of the Holiday Week Tournament. Others of the latest arrivals include Louis Lux of Cleveland; James F. Fryer, George H. Simmerman and Dennis H. Simmerman, of Philadelphia; H. G. Barnes and B. H. Osbourne of High Point, N. C.; G. R. Roberts of Raleigh; Mrs. J. Gillespie and Miss M. Gillespie of New York.

SOME REAL SHOOTING

The Annie Oakley Exhibition

While the giant presses of the PINEHURST OUTLOOK were hurrying the Christmas Number toward completion last week, in time for delivery to its expectant and impatient readers on Christmas Eve, Annie Oakley (Mrs. Frank E. Butler) was delighting all of Pinehurst and a large assemblage of visitors from other places near and far by a remarkable exhibition of Trick Shooting, at the Gun Club.

We are consoled for the fact that our unimportant tribute and homage to this most wonderful of all women shots appears a trifle late in the day, by the further fact that Annie Oakley needs no praise, from us or others. It is sufficient to say that the exhibition showed clearly that Annie Oakley has lost none of the skill and accuracy that won her a niche all her own in the palmiest days of the Buffalo Bill exhibitions. With both wind and sun against her, she went untiringly and successfully through many of the trick shooting 'stunts' so long associated with her name and that used to make her entry into the arena the signal for tumultuous applause. On our first page, in the place of especial honor, where it belongs, we print a picture of Annie Oakley taken at the exhibition and snapped just as she smashed to splinters a flying clay ball swung at a distance in a whirling circle.

A Paper Chase with Excellent Ending

On Wednesday afternoon several of the younger set bestrode their respective fiery steeds and paper chased, largely through the woods. Miss Tufts, Mr. McCaddon, Jr., Miss Hoffman and the Messrs. Field and Ogden were among those who took part. It seems to have been a first class chase but the only definite detail our reporter was able to glean was that the tea was very fine. It was served at Mrs. Tuft's house, at the finish.

Over 100 Advertising Golfers Already Heard from

In response to a telegram from THE OUTLOOK the president of the Golf League of Advertising Interests has kindly furnished us with a list of transportation reservations as it stood on December 28th. The list reaches THE OUTLOOK too late for inclusion in this number but it may be stated that it contains the names of over one hundred ladies and gentlemen who had already reserved transportation to Pinehurst at the beginning of this week—with plenty more still to hear from.
