Telephone to New York

A visitor to the Sanctum brings us an item which may be of interest to others on occasion of sudden attack on the stock market or catastrophe on Broadway. She lives on 56th Street in New York, and had occasion to instruct her domestics on some matters of household economy. What more natural than the telephone. So she called Plaza 1406, or whatever it was, just as we do when we are shopping down town. In twenty minutes the maid was on the wire, and the affair all settled. She said that it was just as simple and quite as plain as from the booth at Macy's.

We made inquiries at the exchange to discover if this might hereafter be considered a safe precedent, and were informed that the wire through to New York had been fixed up for our special benefit, and that it was quite as good as any wire in the country.

You Did Not Know that every Wednesday afternoon the scholars of the Farm Life School at Eureka served tea and chocolate and hot biscuits and all manner of good things at the school house for visitors. And that they have a very interesting place to wile away an hour or two. It is a very pleasant ride of seven or eight miles and, is in a good farming country. If you are in quest of an afternoon's excursion try this one. You will be amply repaid.
