Southern Pines

Our best friend, our nearest neighbor and our closest competitor is the happy village of Southern Pines, just over the way on the main line of the Seaboard. It is there, at the Highland Pines Inn, or one of the many hostleries with open doors and cordial welcomes that we drive to tea, or arrange our dinner party. And above all else, it is to the famous open house upon the hill that occasionally we have the time of our life among the gatherings of the sportsmen following the pink coats and the chorus of the pack. The Weymouth drag hounds of our neighbor, Jim Boyd, are the delight of the district and the center of all our joyful days a-horseback.

All this is self-evident. But we have observed to our astonishment and regret that we have been in divers cases credited with this wonderful hunt, in the pages of the metropolitan press. And we wish to give notice that not least, but most of all men, we appreciate our neighbor and wish her well, and in all instances within our power will herald it forth to the world that in no place in these United States can man find so pleasant a company, so cosmopolitan a hunt, or better accommodations and headquarters for the Winter time, as he can there.

What we have is at her command. What she has unique and beautiful, by your leave we will use, and rejoice withal.

Polo

The polo field was christened the other afternoon by an amateur quartette and the local ponies, led by G. B. Tevis of San Francisco. C. L. Schall of New York, G. R. Raymond from Akron, Ohio, and George Leach made up the game.
