ST. VALENTINE TOURNAMENT

Another Triumph for Mrs. Hurd

Elinor Gates Again Figures in Match Against the Former Champion

AS WAS to be expected Dorothy Campbell Hurd won the President's trophy in the St. Valentine's Golf Tournament for women played here last week. She met Miss Elinor Gates of Locust Valley in the finals, and finished on the fifteenth hole, four up, before a large gallery on the championship course.

The story of this match is one of a remarkably game effort on Miss Gates' part to overcome an immediate advantage that Mrs. Hurd gained at the start. Nervousness in championship play was probably the cause of Miss Gates losing the first three holes by a margin of two strokes each, for as soon as she had steadied down and started that astonishing drive into working form, she became a very formidable aspirant indeed. This driving was at times quite remarkable. Time and again she covered two hundred yards. Three down on the third hole, she was only two down on the thirteenth. This was a notable rally, considering that Mrs. Hurd had gone out in 44, and came in with 45, a total of 89.

Both players were at times in the rough. In the main Mrs. Hurd was unbeatable on the short game, and this, and her steadiness and experience gave her the match. They both made the eleventh hole in three. The match was played out, the cards showing as follows:

MRS. HURD
Out—	5 5 6 5 4 4 5 5—45
In —	5 3 6 5 6 5 4 5 5—44—89
MISS GATES
Out—	7 8 9 4 7 5 5 5 6—56
In —	4 3 6 4 7 7 5 6 4—46—102

The rest of the field were outdistanced by the former champion. Miss Helen Andrews of Akron, Ohio, had been defeated by her in the first round, three and two, and Miss Priscilla Beall of Uniontown eight and six in the second.

Mrs. Guy Metcalf, an Agawam Hunt player of great experience, took the prize in the second division, defeating Mrs. G. H. Atherholt of Philadelphia six and five in the finals. Mrs. C. G. Splane of Pittsburgh and Miss Alice Blum from Bay Shore were the other victims of her march towards the trophy, four and three and two up respectively.

The third division was resolved into a contest between Mrs. R. E. Jeffrey of Columbus, and Mrs. Clara Murdock of Glen Cove. Both swept through the field with many holes to spare and met Saturday morning for the finish. The Columbus lady had the best of it and carried off the honors, three up on the seventeenth.

Mrs. H. H. Van Clief of Poughkeepsie arrived in the fourth division. Mrs. C. F. Lancaster of Boston, after easy going through the early rounds, went down before her on the sixteenth hole. A Detroit player, Mrs. H. H. Rackham, gave her the hardest rub, losing only on the last hole in the semi-finals. Mrs. S. C. Belden of Columbus was no match for the leader in her first match.

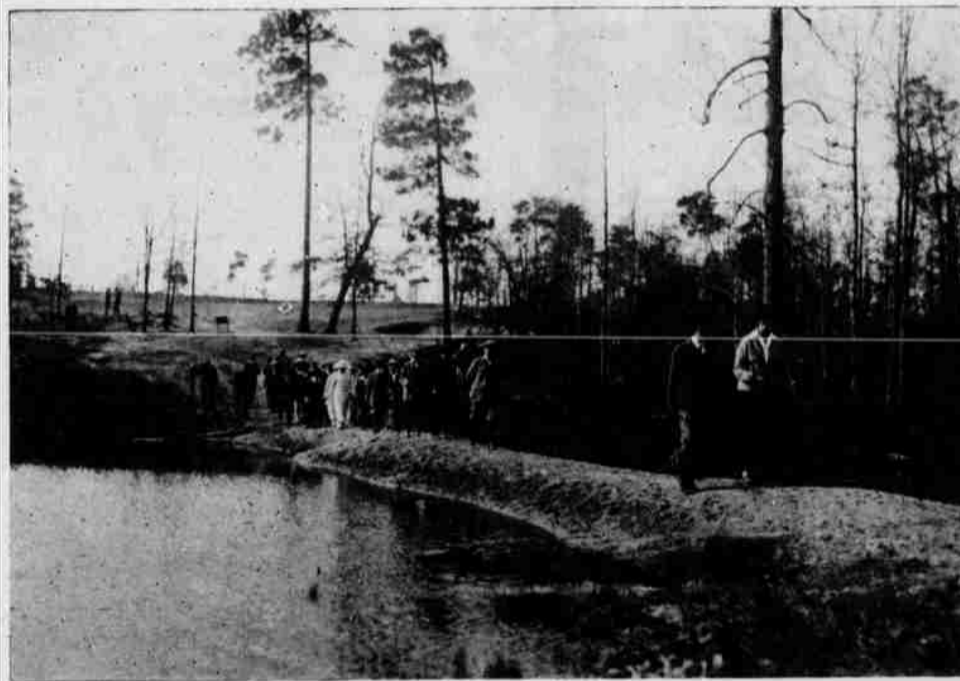

clair, 8 and 7; Mrs. Clara Murdock, Glen Cove, beat Mrs. John Dunlap, Pinehurst, 5 and 4; C. D. McVey, Philadelphia, beat Mrs. F. H. St. Davids, 2 and 1; Mrs. Dwight Hunter, San Angelo, beat Mrs. G. M. Howard, Nova Scotia, 3 and 1.

ENLIGHTENED selfishness is an epithet coined by the truly selfish man for the genuine altruist. Wise selfishness is not selfishness at all. To benefit his neighbor is recognized by all wise men from the time of Moses to be the only certain way of being both prosperous and happy. Hence it is that in our time, as in all times, the fools endeavor to prosper at the disadvantage of their neighbors, and the wise men to their benefit. The fools may be prosperous, but they are not happy. The others may or may not be prosperous, but they are satisfied, and win the game.

Personally I haven't the slightest doubt that the most valuable plantation in North Carolina, and as a final result the most livable community in the South, will be the Drowning Creek Plantation and the Sandhill District.

Contrary to the financial creed the proprietor of this new dominion, planted ten miles in the woods on the old Shaw Ridge above the Lumbee River, does not figure his assets in corn yields per acre, or savings in labor expense, but in the character and training and contentment of his neighbors. He thinks something like this:

"Perhaps by building me a shanty of the approved style—to wit, one room, one fire, one leak, and placing therein one tenant and his ten children and remunerating them with just enough hog and hominy to provide fuel for picking my cotton, I can show a balance of profit on said cotton. And so be a successful planter. Maybe so. But where then will be the sturdy yeomen, the village choir, the independent neighbor with his pretty daughters and his family Bible? Who will want to visit Drowning Creek for its beauty or to meet its inhabitants? And who will want to move here and share with me this Roman feudalism, and rejoice in these barren fields of profit and penury. Go to. I will farm this place according to Hoyle, and so done with that. But principally I will see to it that real men, with their own opinions
