

THE SPRING TOURNAMENT

of Weller's matches were won by the narrowest possible margin, and Hunt reached the semi-finals by winning every match on the last hole.

Donald Parson had a closer squeak still pulling down the consolation prize. J. W. Howell of Baltusrol pushed him to the 20th hole before a decision was reached.

Disposing of J. P. Bowman of Rochester, P. E. Heller of New York and William Jarvie of Bass Rock without a great effort A. L. Carr of Bellevue reached the semi-finals of the fourth division, and annexed the Captain's trophy by beating R. J. Baldwin of Springfield two up and one to play.

The evenest match, and the most prolonged in the tournament was between H. P. Hotchkiss of New Haven and T. A. Dewolf of Baltusrol. It was in the final round of the ninth division. They were even up on the 18th, and halved the nineteenth and the twentieth. It looked as if they might continue on around the course until the millenium, but a good putt on the 21st brought the suspense to a close in favor of Hotchkiss.

Another desperate finish was the victory recorded for James Barber in the consolations of the seventh division, in which he took the nineteenth holes to beat S. E. Slaymaker of Apawamis.
