four, par five for the long fifth and bogey for the five hundred and thirty-seven yard seventh, and still he lost all five and was that many down at the turn. Carter saw the need, the talisman was on the job. He made these five critical holes two under par.

The utmost credit is due to Dyer for his steady and consistent effort to retrieve his fortunes thus so suddenly reversed. There were nine holes more to go. And on not one of them did he make above par. And in spite of that he lost the thirteenth, found himself Dormie on the fourteenth, and Carter's drive waiting for him on the green on the fifteenth. So the Gorham silver service was credited to Philip V. G. Carter, unbeaten and unbeatable, five up and three to play, although Dyer played a better game than any other seen up to that time in this hard fought tournament.

A best ball of 65 on each round.

So strong was the field in the first division that in no case did the winner have his match safe until he had reached the home green except in the first round against Donald Parson of Youngstown. Parson was defeated, 4 and 2, which shows a very radical improvement in his form and standing, considering that this game was against the best player that we have ever seen on these links. Ned Beall of Uniontown lost one up against Carter in the second round, after to all appearances having been all the way within an ace of taking off the match. His most egregious error was on the fifteenth hole. He drove onto the green within fifteen feet of the hole, and to his own and the popular amazement took three putts to make it, thereby putting himself down in the match. As it was, however, he made the eighteen holes in seventy-six, which shows him to be in the championship class.

Early in the game Dyer showed his capacity by disposing of C. E. Van Vleck, a very strong player from Baltusrol, 4 and 3; Jesse Guilford, 3 and 1, and W. M. Paul by a magical putt on the eighteenth green, 1 up. The story of these remarkable matches in detail will be found elsewhere in the paper.

C. L. Becker of Woodland, the leader of golf in the village and one of our most consistent players by some very steady and sustained golf, won the consolation prize in the President's division, his hardest match being in the semi-finals against C. J. Bellamy of Springfield, who tied for second place in the qualification round. He walked away from H. S.

Cummings in the finals to the tune of 7 and 5.

The Governors' trophy was credited to J. W. Watson of Merion, who was second in the qualifying round in this division with an 85. The high man, H. C. Welborn of Richmond, went down in the second round before C. M. Ransom of Buffalo, 5 and 3, who himself lost to the final victor in the semi-finals, 6 and 5. F. W. Hyatt, Jr., of Ridgewood survived to the finals, where the Merion player took his number, 4 and 2. Watson's closest call was with Fred O'Connell of Alpine who pushed him to the seventeenth before a decision was reached.

Coming through the field with substantial margins to his credit in every case was H. C. Fownes of Pittsburgh. In the finals of the consolation T. H. McGraw, Jr., of Oakmont succumbed to the Pinehurst golfer two down.

Wannamoisett, represented by Robert Wilson of Providence, landed the Secretary's trophy. He was matched against S. A. Hennessee of Cooperstown, a strong player from Southern Pines who has figured conspicuously in local tournaments throughout the year and won by the bare margin of one hole. F. S. Danforth of North Fork and the Tin Whistle Club won the consolation prize in this division, defeating P. S. McDonald of Lambton in the final round, 3 and 1.

The Treasurer's trophy went to F. E. Aiken of Dunwoodie, who won from Tom Morrison of Oakmont, 5 and 4; John Heydler, the secretary of the National League, 2 up, J. M. Thompson of Springhaven by one hole, and R. C. Shannon of Brockport, 2 and 1. Morrison is credited with the consolation.
