

A RECORD OPENING

Friends, Golfers and City Men Arrive at the Carolina Hotel

BRAND new and shining in the sun, the portals of the Carolina stand open for the year, a limousine from the frozen North is unloading its precious passengers at the door, the lights are bright in the foyer and the strains from some Hungarian music master float through the corridors. Golf bags are piled high in the porters' paradise, and challenges are mingled with welcomes in the smoking room. Out upon it—old and young we fare forth to the opening this pleasant evening, the 20th of November. Here we find already assembled the veterans of the course, who constitute the first line at the bunkers contemplating a new campaign against Par. Over there in conclave assembled are the field marshalls of the Tin Whistle corps, and nearby the advance guard of the season's buds, eager for the dance.

Mr. T. B. Boyd of St. Louis, M. B. Johnson of Cleveland, and his son, H. H. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Parson from Youngstown, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Lancaster, Dr. M. W. Marr, and J. M. Bowker of Boston, W. L. Milliken, captain of the club team, Jos. D. Gallagher of Glen Ridge and many of the old timers are on hand shining up the mashies. Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Butler (Annie Oakley of shooting fame) lead the lists of hunters already assembled. Mr. S. B. Chapin of New York arrived to spend a few days prospecting on his neighboring dominion.

A number of gentlemen have arrived to put the finishing touches upon their new houses—and the builders thereof. These include James Barber of Englewood, Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Watson of Wayne, Pa., Judge and Mrs. Stanford H. Steele of New York and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Parson of Youngstown.

The season began with just twice as many guests on hand as there were at the opening last year, including:

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Morgan, Sherbourne, Vt.; Mr and Mrs. William M. Cunningham, New York; Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Branch, Richmond; Sarah K. Hall; Miss Betty Christian, Manchester; Edward Stalter, Lyons, N. Y.; R. D. Christian, Manchester, Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Knight, Cleveland; E. A BANNER SEASON

Pine Crest Inn a Center of Activity Since October

Mrs. Bliss has proved both a prophet and a blessing. She opened the Pine Crest Inn this year almost before the harvest, convinced that all people needed to come enjoy the Autumn in the Sandhills was a place to stay. In this day and time we regret to say that figures are more convincing than poetry, so we herewith present the roll call of some of those that took advantage of this invitation. They make a very imposing tribute to both her hospitality and her convictions.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Chester, Syracuse, N. Y.; Mr. F. J. Ellison, Rochester, N. Y.; O. M. Wells, New York; C. S. Campbell, Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Cook, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Cook, Jr., New York; C. H. Merrill, Bangor, Me.; Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Sutton, Minneapolis; Mrs. C. H. Roberts, and J. B. Roberts, New York; Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Young, Lansing,

Don't Buy Water at Humus Prices

THERE'S a vital difference between buying and getting. When you buy unprepared humus in its natural, water-logged condition, 75 per cent. of what you get is water, which you pay for at regular Humus prices.

Unprepared humus is nothing more or less than sour swamp muck. Nothing has been done to neutralize its acidity. No plant foods have been added. None of its moisture has been driven out. It is sold to you just as it is dug up from its watery bed.

When you buy humus; get humus.

Buy Alphano Humus—the concentrated humus. It contains only 30 per cent. moisture—only the necessary amount needed to keep the bacteria alive. The rest of the water has been driven out in huge drying drums, leaving it in a finely granulated condition. Before being dried out the rich soil humus is dug up and scattered over large areas to sun-sweeten and aerate. After being dried out, the necessary plant foods are added to make it a perfectly balanced soil ration. Instead of the green moulds and injurious acid fungi of unprepared humus; Alphano Humus contains the highest forms of fertility producing and nitrogen gathering bacteria.

It is weed-seedless. Because it is so thoroughly screened, it is free from lumps and roots, and is easy to scatter uniformly on the greens. It can be easily incorporated with the soil, giving a firm, compact surface.

Our book on Lawns and Golf Courses, Their Care and Fare, was written by four experts from the standpoint of actual results obtained. Send for it.
