head of the stretch, and began making two feet to one. She just kicked her right along up and shot into the bunch under the wire a dead heat with Miss Abbe, and two seconds too late to chasten the tandem.

CROCKER'S TROPHY

The Guests' Purse was a hot thing between George Crocker Jr., who rode Traveller in the hurdles, and Kendall Pearson of Greenwich, staying at the Green Gables. These two boys drove Hatto and Topsey to their limit, Crocker crossing the line a little to the good, Ewing Cameron a good third on his own mount, and Tatem thundering behind on Col. Welch's Billy. Gordon Cameron got left at the post on Grey Eagle, and gave an exhibition of the enraged father after a runaway wedding party, which was a credit to the sporting proclivities of the Greyling.

A new pacer owned by J. C. Thomas heralded from Greensboro put in an appearance in a led race against the powerful black. Fred Patchin. She just went on and trotted away from him. That's all about it. Thomas, who led Patchin, says all he saw was dust, and he couldn't tell which-away they had gone.

Walter C., according to form, went off with the pacing event, not however without one clear defeat at the hands of the Farm Boy, who is a coming factor. Asked how that happened, Penny was prone to admit that the Thomas horse just out-stepped him, that's all. The time, 2.18 $\frac{1}{4}$ for the mile and an eighth, shows that he is no slouch.

As usual the hit of the day is credited to the Ass Marines who navigated an hilarious squadron of mule teams in casual contest about the track to a glorious end, a victory and everlasting renown to Charlie William's jumping jackass.
