WILLING TRIBUTE

Financial Scouts Dine at the Club House

Return From All Sections of the Country With Thousands of Dollars Collected for the Board of Trade

Wednesday evening the war chiefs of the Sand Hills, Leonard Tufts of Pinehurst and Frank Page of Aberdeen, sent their volunteer scouts to levy willing tribute from the population in support of the community will to flourish and expand, popularly known to many by the title of "The Board of Trade."

This new and effective finance committee spent two days on the road, and foregathered Wednesday and Thursday evenings to return their treasure and dine at the Pinehurst Country Club. Anybody with the slightest interest in the subtleties of finance, or the collective consciousness of a country community—or the welfare of this particular strip of rural new ground would have done well to have been there. Many strange facts were revealed and sidelights on human nature—and many a cynical old saw exploded on the spot.

It was the first time the new dining room had been used. This spacious and dignified hall, with its great curtains and polished floor, and air of beauty and comfort and well being of itself augured a new era come to the old settlement. It will be a long time before a more whole hearted and constructive company will be found there—or elsewhere. There was the sheriff, D. Al. Blue, a man of the people, all pure fighting efficiency and humor, bringing back a rich contribution harvested from the old county seat and from the cabins along the Little River—second in welcome only to the stories of the days' diversion. For unlike any collection agency ever heard of the members of this expedition found a cheerful reception wherever it went, and became enamored of the task which led to hearty greetings at so many firesides,
