low gross for the day. This was on Tuesday. On Monday there had been a qualifying round in which Mrs. Moore had led the field, and Mrs. Gannon had taken the prize for the best net. But some formalities of returning scores had been overlooked in favor of tea, so it was done again on Tuesday under the harsh rules of the serious male golfers. Mrs. Hoyt's net of 45 was also a prize winner on this occasion.

Mrs. Bird proceeded in the match play to record a series of close victories and a well earned championship. The matches were played under a handicap system in which she had 6 strokes over Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Moore, and gave strokes to the rest of the field. She made her way by steady play on the last hole of most every match. She beat Mrs. Ridgway on the 17th; Mrs. Spencer Waters on the last putt, Mrs. J. C. Martin on the second hole of the second round, and only had the fortune to lead at the finish with any margin at all over Mrs. Moore in the final round.

A PUTTING RECORD

Mrs. Sheppard made a new record for this season in the putting contest for ladies. Miss Dorothy Brown had circled the clock several times well under even twos, but Mrs. Sheppard in close competition with Mrs. Ridgway won the event in 20, calling for an even two putts from all positions except four. These were made in one. And at that she was just one stroke ahead of Mrs. Ridgway.

Saturday witnessed the wind-up of this links festival with a medal round under handicap, a feather in Ralph Trier's cap, whose net of 76—100—24—76, was three better than second place carried off by G. L. Fordyce.

The spirit and the golf of this occasion are by no means shown or expressed by a casual recital of the winners of these divisions. There were closer matches, and harder games, as much golf and perhaps more sport, in the thousand rounds made completing the six divisions of each class. One with the available opportunity might tell how Col. Ormsbee went from class to class meeting sad defeat only on the 19th hole on each occasion. He might tell how the flip of a buffalo nickle took the place of a ferry boat and another session in the flood of a Tuesday. But that is for Col.

and Third Best Net, M. J. Grammont, Fox Hills, W. W. Arnheim, Norwood; Fourth Best Net, F. L. Wurzburg, Scarsdale.
