

DANFORTH AND THOMPSON

Take Third Place at the Head of the Tin Whistles

Big Tie for Class B in Best Twelve Hole Contest

AND NOW two other champions have come tearing through the lists, and scattering the precedents, and distancing the old victors, and causing trepidation in the tents of the favorites in the first division when the big guns begin to shoot. They are none other than F. S. Danforth, of North Fork, and J. M. Thompson of the cunning cleeck. In an army corps the Tin Whistles went into the fray on Saturday in two divisions with the ranks full. Achilles Whittemore was back at the trench, and the cohorts were headed by Becker and Hunter, leader of the lists, clothed in no handicap to speak of. The trophies of the day's chase were rewarded for the best twelve holes, six in each nine.

These two—Danforth and Thompson—divided the final honor with a net of 42, something under fours, eking out a hard victory over H. C. Fownes of Pittsburgh by the margin of one stroke. And except for the inevitable Whittemore they also made the best round of the day on number two, an even 80 each. The Brookline player came back with 78, 39 out and 39 in.

Meanwhile the second division in the flank were engaged in such close work that it needs must take another tournament to settle the matter. Seven in all the leaders came home, even to an ell, recording seven 45s for first place. This advance guard was composed of C. W. Harmon, E. M. Slayton, Robert Foote, G. T. Dunlap, J. M. Robinson, C. Z. Eddy and H. S. Houston.
