

CHAMPIONS ARRIVE

Noted Athletes Head This Week's List at the Carolina

Monday is bridge day at the Carolina. And great is the tournament thereof. Last week there were three tables in full swing, guests of Mrs. W. B. Hanna, ladies of the Carolina and the colony seeking to establish the leadership in the science of leads and bids. The honors fell to Mrs. Spencer Waters, Mrs. A. S. Gilman and Mrs. E. P. Spencer. The line up included Mrs. C. R. Hathaway, Mrs. William McLaughlin, Mrs. F. J. Ham, Jr., Mrs. E. C. Horton, Mrs. H. W. Moore, Mrs. M. L. Bishop, Miss Caroline Bogart, Mrs. H. G. Waring and Mrs. W. A. Sandford.

Interest in the big golf tournament running through the week was augmented at the hotel by the arrival of many well known experts at the game, headed by James D. Standish, Jr., of Detroit, the Michigan champion.

Another leading athlete entering the Pinehurst lists that came in last week is E. R. McCormick, the champion tennis player of Yale. He has been trying out the courts with Simmons, who was runner up in the Yale tournament, and who also holds the title for the State of Montana.

Among the charter members of the village returning for their annual visit are Mrs. E. C. Beall of Uniontown and Miss Priscilla Beall. Other recent arrivals include.

Golf in France

Ned Beall, for many years a power on the Pinehurst links, and premier golfer of the village last year, is in the ambulance service in Italy. Next week we shall run his story of the taking of the first American ambulance overland from Paris to Venetian front.

While he was in Paris he met up with Philip V. G. Carter and some other erstwhile golf champions. They decided to have a game for old times sake, Huns or no Huns. So those two and Bob Fields and Bill Souther borrowed a set of weapons from a Frenchman and took a shot at it at St. Cloud's near Paris. It is recorded that Carter had the best score. But it would hardly have won the medal in the North and South.

French Lessons

Miss Katherine O'Connor, who gives lessons in French and Spanish is staying at the Berkshire Hotel. We regret that we inadvertently gave the impression in our last week's issue that she had been staying at the Pine Crest Inn, and had left town.

The Big Front Door of the Hotel McAlpin opens at your approach.

It admits you to an hotel where you will find every comfort, every luxury—and, above all, the earnest desire to welcome you.

Location and management make the McAlpin an ideal home for those who linger and those whose stay in New York is short.

The McAlpin has more than 1700 rooms. Its Mezzanine Restaurant and Terra Cotta Grill are famous. Rates moderate.

When you come to New York, make the McAlpin your home.
