

CAMERON'S CLASSIC

One of the greatest surprises of the day was Herbert Cameron's defeat. The popular riding master entered his pride, the "Flying Jackass," to compete with several unknown wonders, in the fastest event of the day. Three entries left the mark, and it was only known to those who was fortunate enough to bring field glasses, what happened thereafter. Somewhere on the horizon clouds of dust could be seen, which we took to be signs of the galloping steeds. Just about the time when stop watches refused to work any longer, in came one of the chariots, but misericordia! it was not Cameron's. Dust covered came another. He reported no signs of Cameron and the grand stand settled down to await the worst. Alas, what is it. The pride of the Pinehurst stables coming down the stretch, slow but sure. The comments of Mr. Cameron covering his futile attempt to ride to victory can be obtained in full detail from him by written request. We feel obliged to inform anyone who desires this information, to write for it.

It is needless to add that Uncle Remus the snow ball patriarch of the Sandhills again won the tree chopping contest from a fast field of contestants.

Holly Inn Unanimous

The Holly Inn came into the patriotic game with its usual thorough and cheerful manner last Tuesday evening, when under the direction of a committee of the whole total personnel of the place, from the most exalted guest to the humblest buttons repaired to the ball room to contribute their moral support and their pocket money to the Casus Belli.

The meeting was presided over by N. Y. Worrall. The Reverend T. A. Cheatham, the leader of the Christian soldiers and the constructive thought in this section made a short and effective talk upon the paramount duty of every man in the crisis, and was enthusiastically supported by W. L. Lawrence. Miss Johnson stirred the audience by rendering the Battle Hymn of the Republic and Dixie, and the Holly Inn Quartette, improvised for the occasion put the finishing touches upon the evening with a selection appropriately entitled "Good-bye Kaiser Bill." The members of the harmony brigade were Miss Eleanor Abbe and Miss Marian Abbe, James B. Kellogg and Henry Moore.

As an immediate result of the rally there is now not one single soul in the hotel but that is the possessor of the War Saving Stamps. Something over $700 of the stamps were sold that night.

The Committee wish to extend their thanks to the soloists and the quartette and the many employees and guests whose endeavors produced the beautiful and elaborate decorations of the hall and the profusion of the National colors supplied everyone for the evening.

"Why do you stare at me, so?" demanded the pert young maiden.

"I'm a reporter," replied the bold youth, "and I'm simply looking at your nose."

"Indeed! And it that necessary?"

"O! yes. I have to keep my eye on everything that turns up."

IT IS YOUR DUTY

To know all about War Savings Stamps.

The Thrift Stamps cost 25c each and pave the way to systematic saving. The War Stamps are $4.13 each, bear interest at 4 per cent and will be exchanged for sixteen Thrift Stamps plus 12c in cash. They are for sale at the Postoffice and banks.

Get The Saving Habit

Buy a THRIFT STAMP every day, help yourself and help your government win the war. Remember that if every person in the United States bought a 25c Thrift Stamp it would mean $25,000,000 for our country.
