

AT Hotel McAlpin one may make delicious food the center of attraction, with music and dancing a secondary consideration—or one may revel in music and dancing with a delightful meal but, a natural accompaniment. For, at the McAlpin, all three are beyond criticism.

A single pound of cotton has been spun into a single thread more than 1,000 miles in length.

"The snow is lying pretty deep out this way," remarked the visitor from the city.

"Yes," replied the intelligent farmer, "but not as deep as the Oldest Inhabitant is lying about old-time snowstorms"
