

STEADY MAN

Sole and Heel of Sturdy White Rubber

makes the most practical golf shoe

The truncated cones on the sole are positioned precisely where the stance comes - - under the ball of the foot.

These cones prevent slipping. They grip the soil. They never tear the turf or green.

Lighter than ordinary "spiked" shoes, they're thoroughly comfortable. Sewn to leather, Steady Man Soles and Heels do not "draw" the feet.

Unnecessary to change shoes for luncheon or between games. They do not disfigure rugs or floor.

Fine, too, for the tennis court, or yachting.

Easily attached to your friendly old shoes, at W. N. Foye's. Ask your club "Pro" for them. Or, a line to us will ensure your getting them.

INAUGURATION SIDE-LIGHTS

WASHINGTON, (United Press.)—Calvin Coolidge was vice-president under Woodrow Wilson for a few minutes. He took the oath before Senator Harding. Between the time of the Coolidge oath and Harding oath, Coolidge was vice-president, but Harding was not president.

Inauguration days have always been bad ones for the weatherman. For the Taft inauguration the official forecast said fair and the elements double-crossed the forecaster.

There wasn't any traffic jam when Senator Harding rode down Pennsylvania avenue or when President Harding rode back. Washington police cleared the street and Harding and his squad of cavalry had the avenue to themselves.

Calvin Coolidge is the fourth vice-president from Massachusetts. The others were John Adams, who served with Washington, Eldridge Gerry, who served with Madison, and Henry Wilson, who served with Grant. Ohio, the mother of presidents, has never had a vice-president and New York has furnished nine.

THE OATH HARDING TOOK

WASHINGTON, (United Press.)—Here is the oath of office administered to President Harding today:

"I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States, and will to the best of my ability preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

When Harding took the oath his hand rested upon George Washington's Bible and the manuscript of his inaugural address lay upon the table used by Abraham at his second inauguration.

Washington hotel keepers today were almost as sad as Democratic officeholders. Rooms at $250 a week were cancelled when Harding asked a simple inauguration.

Thomas Riley Marshall today gained the distinction of being the third American to complete two successive terms as vice-president.

The other two were John Adams, who served two terms with Washington, and Daniel D. Tompkins, who served twice with James Monroe.

George Clinton and John C. Calhoun have been twice elected but Clinton died in office and Calhoun resigned before completing his second term.

MISS VIRGINIA HOLZDERBER WINS RIFLE CONTEST

Miss Virginia Holzderber was awarded the prize for the week's rifle shooting contest for women at the Gun Club. Miss Holzderber's winning target was 147 out of a possible 150 and was by far the best score that has been made this season. Miss Helen England of Philadelphia, and Mrs. J. J. Grady of Brooklyn followed, at 137 and 133.

SENIORS' TOURNAMENT

An innovation to Pinehurst's tournament schedule and one that promises to become an interesting fixture to the scheduled events at the Country Club is the Seniors' Tournament, which will be staged on March 3-4.

The conditions provide for players over 54 years of age. Prizes will be awarded for the best net scores, first and second days, and best selected score. Additional prizes have been donated as follows:

Prize for second best net score, donated by James Barber; best gross 36 holes, by T. B. Boyd; and best selected score by Frank Presbrey.

WHAT HAPPENED AT DEAL

the official summary with a high score, and preferred to tell their friends they picked up after playing three rounds. Hagen went out on the final afternoon and shot the last 18 holes and turned in a complete card; bad as it was. It was a game thing to do and it proved that the American champion was no quitter.

That final 18 holes was probably the hardest round of golf Hagen ever played. The crowds were following Duncan, Barnes, Herd and a few others who had a chance to win. Hagen, with his partner, and two caddies, trailed around alone, among strangers in a strange land. If spectators happened to cross his path he knew well enough what sort of comments they were making. The situation would have driven a lot of golfers to the seclusion of the locker-room; but Hagen stuck it out to the bitter end.

Another important thing which Hagen never received credit for was that immediately following the Deal tournament he went to France and won the French open from a strong field, indicating that he had not allowed his failure at Deal to unnerve him. Duncan and Mitchell were in the field in the French open as well as a large number of the best British and European professionals.

Hagen did not offer any alibi for his failure to score well at Deal, other than to say that he could not get going, a fact that was obvious to those who followed him during the first day's play. Golf is a peculiar game. No player in the professional ranks so outclasses all others that he can always win against the best competition that can be gathered. There are a limited number of golfers who are capable of shooting good enough golf to win any tournament if they are at the top of their game. Some are capable of doing it oftener than others. Hagen is one of these and ranks in the top group.

He has been fortunate enough to twice hit his best stride in the American open championship and in numerous other important open events. He may be thus fortunate some day when playing in the British open, and if so, he will be hard to beat. He was under a great strain at Deal, for he realized that all American golfers were watching and waiting to hear the news of what he did there. It was a terrific load to carry. When he returns for a second or a third try, he will not be so burdened.
