ANOTHER FOR OHIO

Ohio, which has more sectional golf associations even than Illinois, is to boast another; this time around Toledo. The buckeye state has been able to digest two or three corner pocket championships, not to mention one near the center of the stage with surprising facility, although its golf does not compare with that of New York, Pennsylvania and other commonwealths, either in age or defusion. Still there is nothing to indicate that with the rapid development of the game recently in every nook of the state that the point of saturation has nearly been reached.
