JUDGE'S FORCES DEFEAT SENATORS

Judge John Barton Payne of Chicago, F. K. Curtis, New York, William Bibb, Sleepy Hollow, and A. L. Walker of the Richmond Country Club, comprised the winning team in a four-ball match played over the Number 3 course on Monday against Speaker of the House, Gillett, ex-Senator C. B. Henderson of Nevada, Senator G. M. Hitchcock, Nebraska, and Lindsay Russell of Tuxedo. The Judge's side won by a decisive margin. Speaker Gillett led his team with a medal round of 100, while Walker's 98 was the best of the Judge's forces.

"DOCTOR"

By Edgar A. Guest

"Meet Dr. Burch," said he to me,
As we stood together on the tee,
So I shook his hand and we started off
For a friendly round of rotten golf.

I put my drive in a nearby pit,
And told the world what I thought of it,
I missed a putt for a five and said
A few brief words that were flaming red.

Good Doctor Burch was a friendly chap
But he only grinned when he found a trap,
And all that he said when he missed a putt
For an easy win was a meek "Tut-tut!"

I thought it queer when old Bill went wrong
That he hummed a snatch of a Christian song,
And I thought it strange when a drive he scuffed
That he merely looked at the gang and laughed.

Now the hair discloses the breed of dogs
But men look alike in their golfing togs,
And no one can tell from a sweater gray
The work of the man who comes to play.

I never had seen Doc Burch before,
So whenever I flubbed I roundly swore,
And I painted the air a livid hue
As all of the hypocrites will do.

"You're a wonderful man," says Bill to me
As we stood at last on the eighteenth tee.
"I thought you knew that this Doctor Burch
Is the minister over at my wife's church."

Then he laughed and laughed in his ghoulish glee
As we both stood there on the eighteenth tee;
And all I could do was to whisper low
The name of the place where Bill could go.

Now I hold to this: that the title "Doc"
Is much too vague for the golfing flock,
But never again when I start to play
Shall I be caught in the self-same way.

I'll beware the friend with the fiendish grin
Who ushers the unknown doctor in,
And I'll make him tell e'er I take the course
Does he doctor the soul or man or horse?
