

THE PINE CREST INN

Pinehurst, N. C.

A prominent Tourist Bureau wrote one of our former guests for a reference of The Pine Crest Inn. Here is his answer:

"A refined place for recreation. Hotel modern, with steam heat, baths, etc. Extensive precautions against fire. Service attentive, polite and ample. Table abundant and good. Terms reasonable. Am going again in December. Friendships there made are lasting."

Haines and Joan Crawford head the all-star cast. See it at the Carolina Theatre, Monday, March 18th.

CLEAR THE DECKS—A comedy-drama, with most of the scenes taking place on a private yacht. A splendid production featuring Reginald Denny, supported by Olive Hasbrouch, Otis Harlan, and Collette Merton. Coming to the Carolina, Wednesday, March 20th.

SHAKEDOWN—Telling a stirring story of the oil fields and prize ring, The Shakedown has for its theme the age-old ruse of unscrupulous promoters of faked fights staged for the express intention of collecting bets. James Murray portrays the role of the come-on man for a group of ring racketeers who are working the faked fight racket in small communities. Sent into an oil town with instructions to get a job, make friends and pave the way for his next faked fight, Murray meets the girl, played by Miss Barbara Kent, and a nine-year-old street waif, and because of their love for him, decides to forsake his old racket for the straight and narrow path. At the Carolina Theatre, Friday, March 22nd.

Sound Features at the Carolina Theatre, Southern Pines

THE SINGING FOOL—Al Jolson, himself, singing his melodies in his usual incomparable fashion. The picture that everyone will see and hear. Friday and Saturday, March 15th and 16th.

BROADWAY MELODY—An all-star cast headed by Anita Page in the first all-talking musical comedy yet to be produced. Opening in New York at the Capitol this week, the film is predicted to be setting out on a record run. This will be its first showing in the South. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, March 18th, 19th and 20th.

ON TRIAL—Pauline Frederick in one of Warner Brothers' ace productions. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 21st, 22nd and 23rd.
