BRITISH WARSHIPS SIGHTED IN BALTIC

By the Associated Press

Sighting of British warships in the Baltic sea and the effort of the Russian Soviets to set up a Communistic government in Northern Finland, by recognizing and forming a mutual assistance pact with the "People's Government," were the most significant moves Saturday in the Russian attack upon the Finns.

The appearance of British warships in the Baltic gave credence to reports of growing friction between Great Britain and Russia.

Joseph Stalin yesterday signed a mutual assistance pact with Otto Kuusinen, head of the "People's Government of Finland," which was established Friday in Terijoki, near the Russian border.

While Finnish Communists were agreeing to Stalin's demands, the new Finnish government in Helsinki, led by Premier Ryti was declaring that the "independence of Finland shall not be destroyed by our Eastern neighbor." Two cabinet sessions considered asking the League of Nations to summon a special meeting to consider the Russian-Finnish war.

While Finland's military forces were reported to have swept invading Russians from the port of Petsamo, there were indications of Russian reinforcements in that area, and doubt was expressed by military leaders that the Finns could hold the regained positions. The recapture of the port was accomplished after an all night march through snow and over mountain passes.

Under the pact arranged by Stalin and Kuusinen, the Finnish Communists would transfer to Russia 1,537 square miles in the Karelian Peninsula, moving the Finnish-Russian border northward. It would lease to Russia for 30 years the peninsula on which is located Finland's Gibraltar of the Baltic. A number of neighboring islands would be included, for the establishment of Russian naval and air bases in the Gulf of Finland.

In the afternoon Bobby played the better ball of Reece and Knowles.

The Southern champion scored a 69, which gave him his second win of the day. His card against Knowles and Reece read:

PINEHURST SCOREBOARD

by ROBERT E. HARLOW

Gene Sarazen was evidently a bit put out when the P. G. A. failed to name him as a member of the 1939 Ryder Cup side which would have played against the British last month, IF.

Last spring Gene said he would not accept a position on the team. He gave out a complaint based on the fact that he had never been named as captain of the American team, a job which has been handed to Walter Hagen ever since the International contest was created.

There was much in Gene's beef. He was, as a matter of fact, entitled to have been named as captain at least once. But he did not get on well with the politicians of the P. G. A., and politicians do not build up a machine by handing out patronage to their opponents.

Now Gene announces that he can name a team of pros capable of beating the 1939 official professional side. Gene would play captain. Gene does not keep his name in the newspapers by dint of a retiring nature. Having failed of appointment as captain of the Ryder Cup side, he promotes a team on his own, and appoints himself captain, and gets more publicity than Hagen did, when he was named leader of the regular forces.

Examination of the records of the two teams indicates that if Gene wagered the $5,000 he talked about in printer's ink, he would lose his money. Gene's side could not whip the regulars if statistics mean anything.

The ten men on the P. G. A. side have won a total of $61,283 in prize money this season, whereas Gene's selections have won $31,635. Scoreboard, having followed big time professional golf in an intimate capacity for many years, will wager Gene another $5,000 in printer's ink money, that a side which can win $61,283 in prize money can whip a team which can win only $31,635 in prize money.

There are other figures which make the regulars outstanding. The average age of the P. G. A. side is 29.5 years; that of the Sarazen side is 33.09. Professor Harvey Lehman of Ohio University, after an examination of the dates of some 100 pro golfers who won major championships, found that the peak years for top performance were between 25 and 34. Scoreboard doubts if Gene can outsmart the figures of Professor Lehman. His crew is approaching the downward swing of the age limit for most proficient competitive golf among hard hitting pros. The P. G. A. team is hitting the very peak of this nine-year period.

It is interesting to note, however, that all of the boys on the P. G. A. team have been good members of the association and never criticised the recent administration. There are at least three members of the Sarazen side who dared to defy the old P. G. A. regime. These men are Sarazen, Craig Wood, and Shute.

Sarazen, Wood and Shute, on their records, are probably more entitled to spots on the official side than three of the men who have been named, but even with these allowances because of politics, the regular team should clean up Sarazen's side, and be an odds on favorite.

The regulars are Nelson, Picard, Guldahl, Smith, Metz, Snead, McSpaden, Runyan, Hines and Ghezzi.

The nine men named by Sarazen to join him against the regulars are Cooper, Shute, Wood, Revolva, Thomson, Armour, Dudley, Harrison and Hogan.

It should be noted that Cooper, Thomson and Armour are not eligible for the regular team, being foreign born.

Had the Ryder match been played there would have been a terrific shout from the friends of Sarazen, Shute and Wood, because they were left outside—and with much justification.

Don't forget — entries close tonight for the Badminton tournament which will be held at The Carolina tomorrow morning.

Seek Harold Kittle; Father Seriously Ill

The State Highway Patrol and police officers throughout the state are trying to locate Harold Kittle, whose father, George Walter Kittle is seriously ill at Charleston, W. Va. A plea was received yesterday by the State Highway Patrol in the form of a letter from his sister, Mrs. Creed Meadows of Charleston, W. Va. The letter stated that the missing Harold Kittle was believed killed in a mine explosion 14 years ago, his body unrecovered, but that a post card was received by his half-sister, Mrs. Thelma Kittle at Charleston, Sept. 26, 1939. The card, which was apparently written by the missing man was postmarked "Pinehurst, N. C." leading to the belief that he is alive and somewhere in this vicinity.

Anyone having information regarding the missing person is asked to get in touch with the State Highway Patrol. Authorities have received no description, nor do they know the age of the missing man.
